BLUEPRINT:
A SECOND CENTURY

PRESENTING:

Dr. Roy Phelps

The oldest of two brothers and two sisters, Dr. William Roy Phelps was born on April 25, 1927 in Suffolk, Virginia. At the age of 11, he went to work in a Drug and Grocery store to help shoulder the financial burden that was placed on the family while his father was in the hospital with tuberculosis.

Dr. Roy Phelps continued to work to improve himself as well as his family. In 1944, he enlisted in the United States Navy and saw action in Okinawa, Japan, and Panama. In 1946, he began his education at East Carolina University earning a double major in Spanish and History. From 1950 to 1953 in the United States Navy Attache, he was in Baghdad for two years with temporary duty to Lebanon, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Jordan, Greece and Syria, and from 1955 to 1960, Dr. Phelps had duty in Havana, Cuba, San Antonio de los Baños, Teheran and Iran also joining United States Army Military Advisory Group.

Dr. William Roy Phelps began his career in 1961 teaching Spanish at Rose High School in Greenville, North Carolina and receiving his Master's in Education and History at ECU. Then for a year, he was an Assistant Professor of Spanish at Gardner-Webb College. As Director of Academic Center for Latin American Studies at ECU in 1966, Dr. Phelps was also a teaching assistant while entering the doctoral program at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Continuing his education along with his career, Dr. Phelps went to the University of Sarasota of Florida (with UNC) achieving his Doctorate of Education Curriculum and Language at UNC in such areas as Spanish, Portuguese and Arabic.

Joining the Campbell University faculty in 1968 and moving his home to Buies Creek, Dr. Phelps became an Associate Professor of Spanish. He taught undergraduate introductory, intermediate, and advanced courses and trained Foreign Language teachers. Along with enjoying Campbell, he, in 1985 went to Middlebury College and in 1987 went to East Tennessee State University (in Spain) still educating himself on Spanish. Today, Dr. Roy Phelps serves as a deacon of Pleasant Memory Baptist Church in Coats, North Carolina. He is a member of Disabled American Veterans, American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese, and American Association of Teachers of Arabic. He has led a very exciting and interesting life. Campbell University has come to love him for his kindness and understanding. Senior Business Administration major Ilene Mabry states, "Dr. Roy Phelps would lend his help to the needs of any student, faculty or administrative member on this campus."

It is because of his never ending dedication to Campbell University, its students, and his family that the 1988 Pine Burr Staff feels honored to dedicate this fifty-third volume to Dr. William Roy Phelps — the man with unusually friendly personality and sincere nature that will always hold a warm place in our hearts.

We have taken pride in the celebration of Campbell University's 100 outstanding years and we hope to succeed in a second century of great accomplishments. Beginning anew and yet keeping within traditions may be difficult. We may want to make a few changes to help make this second century a success. Campbell University is not the only one searching for a "new life" groups, teams, states, and countries are also striving to be their best.

The year 1987 began — designed as a Blueprint — with new goals, hard work, sincerity and dedication. Many things changed at Campbell over the summer. The first changes came with the remodeling of Treat/Powell Dorms, the retirement of Dean Sue Burgess, and the appointment of Dean Phillip Melvin as the Dean of Students. We also gained a new Director of Student Activities.

In the world scene, Supreme Court nominee, Robert Bork, after five days of grilling on his judicial philosophy was rejected by 58 senators. In January, the worst accident in Amtrak history left 16 killed and 175 injured when the three linked conrail engine skidded into the path of a 12-car Washington-to-Boston passenger train near Baltimore. Around the end of the month, Coach Bill Parcells rejoiced when his team, the New York Giants, won the Super Bowl 39-20 over the Denver Broncos.

February brought about the investigation of the Iran-Contra affair by the Tower Commission. William Casey, six year director of the CIA, died at age 73, after being hospitalized with brain cancer. Robert McFarlane, former National Security Advisor, after having been questioned in the Iran-Contra investigation, attempted suicide. And, Donald Regan was replaced by former Senator Howard Baker as White House Chief of Staff.

In March, the death toll was 193, after a ferry to Dover, England overturned in the worst English Channel disaster since World War II. And Coach Bobby Knight led Indiana University to the NCAA basketball crown.

As Spring opened, Congress voted to allow states to raise the speed limit to 65 mph on major interstates. And in May, Clinton House was the first person in the United States to donate his heart and receive a new heart and lungs in a "Domino Donor" exchange at Baltimore's Johns Hopkins Hospital. The day that the new immigration law went into effect, fifty thousand of the estimated 3.9 million eligible illegal immigrants in the United States applied for legal status. And, Saragosa, West Texas lay in shambles after a twister destroyed 61 homes, killed 30, and injured more than 100.

In June, Margaret Thatcher won her third straight election to become the first British Prime Minister since 1826 to do so. Kurt Waldheim, formally banned from entering the United States because of his World War II link to the Nazis, made his first foreign visit as President of Austria, calling on Pope John Paul II. And the Disney box office winner, Snow White, was toasted on her 50th birthday with gala showings in the month of July.

In August, Cecilia Cichan age four was the only survivor of a Northwest Airlines crash during takeoff in Detroit that killed the other 154 people on the plane. Fifty people died in the bloodiest attempted coup in the Philippines since Corazon Aquino took office. At the age of 25, Marine Sergeant Clayton Lonetree was found guilty of espionage in Moscow's United States Embassy spy scandal and then three months later, the entire case was under investigation.

In September, fires that destroyed 900,000 acres in California, Oregon, Washington and Idaho were the worst since 1910. On September 17, the entire nation celebrated the 200th anniversary of the United States Constitution.

On October 16, an Iranian missile hit the American-flagged tanker Sea Isle City, wounding the captain and 17 crewmen. Everyone marked on their calendar the day of October 19, Black Monday, when the Dow Jones Industrial Average dropped a record 508 points. Within six hours of trading on the New York Stock Exchange, $500 billion was lost.

Unlike the world we live in, Campbell University hasn't seen such troubles. We've been able to enjoy the Beach weekends, ski trips, concerts, the entering of acid-washed denim in our closets, and the fun of student life here at Campbell. We want to do the best we can with our homes, our families, our friends, and Campbell University to make a success of the Blue-print-the second century.

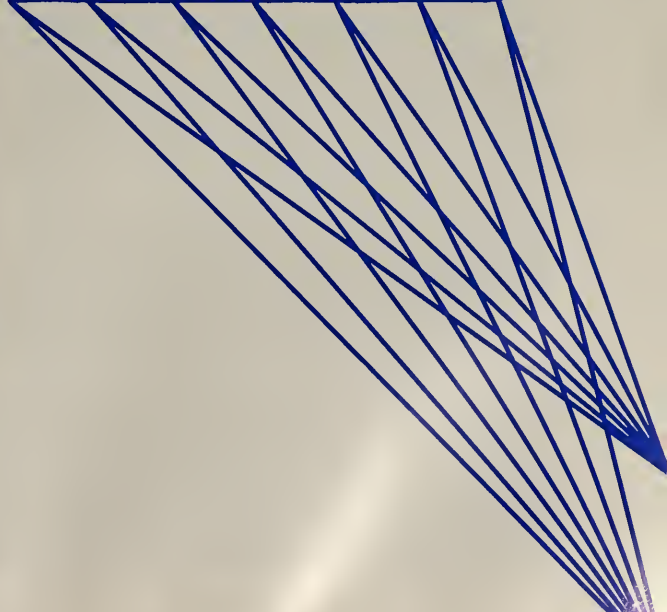

STUDENT LIFE

Back In The Creek

The first week of school was a very hectic one. The Entertainment Committee had activities planned for the whole week. These 'back-to-school' activities were designed to 'break the ice' between freshmen and reacquaint old friends.

Registration began Monday at 8 a.m. and concluded at 4 p.m. Students spent an hour or so filling out little cards and signing many papers. Tuesday, students registered from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. The Campbell ROTC Department sponsored a 'Pool-Party' to help students unwind and get ready for the big day on Wednesday.

Alarm clocks rang early Wednesday morning for students to begin their first day of classes. After a long day of classes, students were treated to a mega-split at 6:30 by the fountain. Students gathered for a chance to view and eat the fifty foot banana split. Later that night, 'Sound Approach' welcomed students back with their rocking sound.

Jones Hall hosted the President's Reception Thursday night. All students were invited to attend to greet President Wiggins and others from the administration.

After a week of busy activities, students were ready to hit the books — after being officially "Back In The Creek"!

The Dorm Experience

Dorm life is not an easy thing to get use to. For eighteen years most students enjoyed their own room at some point, and a bathroom that was shared with only two maybe three others. There was no one yelling across the hall from one room to another, playing loud music at all hours of the night and day, and mom washed our clothes, cleaned our room or saw to it that we did it, made sure we had something for breakfast and at school on time.

Then suddenly we are in college, living with three to thirteen other people, sharing a small bathroom, washing our own clothes, mending them, if possible, cleaning our own rooms, and getting ourselves up and to class on time. After the first couple of weeks everyone gets adjusted to "dorm life." Now students seem to follow one of two plans: the first is "Messy Marvin," and the second is "Neat Nancy." (These plans apply to both males and females.)

A "Messy Marvin" leaves the bed unmade, clothes are thrown in piles everywhere, the dresser is cluttered, the desk — it's under the pile of dirty clothes — I think!! They get up at 8:30 or 8:45 and are in class at nine (or shortly thereafter). This person can usually be spotted or sounded out in class. They look tired from the rush over to class and can't seem to think clearly when asked a simple question. Then right in the middle of the lecture a loud rumble is heard — No time for breakfast, obviously.

Now for the "Neat Nancy" type. These people get up at 7:00 am every morning, take a shower, get dressed, make their bed, put everything in its proper place, go get something for breakfast, and are in class at precisely ten minutes 'til nine. Anytime you walk into "Nancy's" room everything is neat — looks just like the cleaning lady just left. Every time you touch something, she wipes off the prints and smooths out the wrinkles if you sit on the bed. Dirty clothes — does he/she have any? So as not to stereotype anyone into a "Messy Marvin" or a "Neat Nancy" there are those who fall in between. (No offense to anyone who unfortunately falls into one of the two categories described.)

Dorm life also has a very serious side to it. Students get to know the people they live with and develop close friendships that will last a lifetime. Students become relaxed around the people they live with, they become like family. "The closeness that forms between suitemates is great," said Kim Haywood. "My suite is very close, we have a lot of good times together. We play jokes on one another, help each other out, we laugh, we cry, and we grow together." Dorm life is a very unforgettable experience. — One I would not trade.

Home Sweet Dorm

For over 1500 students, a room containing two desks, beds and closets, with a bathroom down the hall serves as "home away from home" for nine months out of the year. As austere as these accommodations may sound, the dorm room is a place where some of one's best college days are spent.

Dorm life is only what you make it, and there are some students whose main goal in college is to keep the dorm a fun and exciting place. These are the students who make college life what it really should be, whether it be through practical jokes or long friendly talks.

Many students form lasting friendships with roommates and suitmates by participating in dorm activities. All of the dorms provide activities throughout the year for students to meet and get to know each other.

Here are some reasons why students enjoy dorm life:

Beth Kennedy, Senior: "— the closeness of friends and having people around 24 hours of the day."

Max Radford, Junior: "— having the opportunity to get to know, learn from, and exchange stories with three other guys."

Shelley Lanier, Sophomore: "— both the closeness of campus and friendships help to create a big family atmosphere."

Mark Blalock, Freshman: "— learning from your roommate."

The dorm room has become a place of late night rap sessions, laughing at crazy pictures and jokes, sharing popcorn and hot chocolate, playing loud music, and for some, a place to study.

However, it will never be able to replace that warm special place called home.

"Parents Pack Up"

One weekend each year parents pack up and come to the creek instead of the students going home. The day, of course, is 'Parents Day.' Parents arrived to find the sun shining and the temperature warm, a great day for visiting "The Creek."

The day 'officially' began at 8 am when Parents registered at Carrie Rich Memorial Library. Then they were off to Turner Auditorium to hear Dr. Wiggins and other guests speak. It was music to their ears when Campbell's finest — Choir, Singers and Chorale — performed.

Following the speeches and entertainment parents were then free to wander in and out of the "big top." Students and various organizations displayed their finest ideas and works for all to see. Each club or group was also judged by a panel of judges and the top three received a cash reward.

At noon, Parents were treated to a picnic style lunch by the fountain. Afterwards they could go to the Parade of Athletes and Parents, followed by the orange and black basketball game.

The day's events began to wind down with the soccer game Campbell hosted UNC-Asheville. At half time, parents enjoyed the expertise of skydivers. The day concluded with the performance of "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat."

The day's events were very successful. Everything, even the weather, welcomed parents to 'the creek' to see their sons'/daughters' "#2 home."

Election '87

The final count was in and though it was a close race, Kevin Clark won the presidency and the Student Government Association had its officers for the 1987-1988 school year.

Campaigns kicked off in high gear on March 9. About 300 students turned out to vote in the first set of elections voting for SGA Executive Officers. The voters also came in good number for class officer elections on April 14.

Students also voted for the Constitutional Amendments Referendum on the 14th. Becky Elwood, Rules Committee Chairman said the amendments

"deal with the election procedure." In the future, Class Officer elections will be held separate from elections for the representatives. The amendments also extend the campaigning period for office seekers. As soon as nomination forms are turned in, campaigning can begin. A change was also made concerning the honor code.

Kevin Clark, newly elected SGA President said "the turnout for this spring's elections was inspiring; students turned out in droves to vote, a trend that I hope continues."

Coming Home to Campbell

Amidst the early winter chill, hundreds of Campbell alumni and students reached "Beyond the Stars" into a "Bold New Venture" to celebrate Homecoming on October 3rd.

The day began at 9 a.m. with alumni registration in the library mall, followed by an alumni meeting at 10:30 a.m. in Turner Auditorium. Lunch was served at noon outside the cafeteria; but most people found a warm spot in a dorm, building or in the cafeteria to eat.

A parade of floats followed at 2 p.m. beginning at the bookstore and ending at the soccer field. Students from all classes, dorms and organizations showed their Campbell spirit with decorated trucks, flatbeds, cars and wagons.

The Junior Class officers "Pushed the Camel Spirit" to win the $100 first prize in the parade by transforming a Toyota into a camel using grocery bags and adding a head, hump and tail. Second prize went to Day Dorm and third prize to Strickland Dorm.

Following the parade, the Camels were able to "Beat the Bucs" of Baptist in a 3 p.m. soccer match, winning 2 to 1. Halftime activities included the crowning of Amy Goodwin, a Senior from Durham, as Harvest Queen and Senior Colleen Campbell as Princess. Also, Gaylord the Camel introduced the spirited crowd to his new partner, Gladys.

A dorm decorating contest was also held during the day with Jones Dorm winning the $150 first prize for their interpretation of the theme. Day Dorm followed with second prize and McKay House with third.

The evening came to a close in Raleigh with the first homecoming ball, co-sponsored by the Senior Class and the Alumni Office, at the Brownstone Inn. This "bold new venture" was a semi-formal/black tie optional affair and attracted 350-400 students and alumni. Senior Class President Billy Sewell was very pleased with the turnout and thinks this is the precedent for the future Senior classes.

Dancing is a main attraction on this campus whether it be on the street, by the fountain, between dorms, in the gym, or in the cafeteria.

The Entertainment Committee, composed of about 30 members, organizes a major portion of the dances as one of its functions. Sylvia Baker, chairman, said that they have little trouble organizing a dance and booking a band or DJ. Student participation is normally very good for these events provided there is good music for dancing feet.

The Back-to-School Dance, Dream Date Dance, and Halloween Dance were all sponsored by the Entertainment Committee.

"Sound Approach" provided a powerful music sound for the Freshman Mixer and Street Dance, both sponsored by Men's and Women's Campuses.

Students seem to enjoy dancing to the Top-40 format best, including hits like "Wipeout," "Rock Steady," and "This Is It." Shagging to beach music favorites like "Miss Grace" and "Surfin' USA" is an all-time favorite of some students, while rapping, twisting and shouting also gain a mild audience response as well as the popular slow tunes such as "Only In My Dreams" and "Didn't We Almost Have It All."

Colors of Fall

Fall. The season always brings to mind brisk air, shorter days, hayrides, and of course the changing of the leaves. The trees are ablaze with beautiful colors — reds, oranges, yellows and greens. During this season Campbell, like the trees, shows its colors.

Eight of the brightest, most beautiful colors are the ladies elected to be the Harvest Court. This year's court was led by Queen Amy Goodwin. Amy is a Senior Business major from Durham, NC. Princess Coleen Campbell is a Senior Trust major from Oxford, NC. Other members of the court were Lisa Dyer, Senior Trust major from Cooperstown, NY; Sylvia Baker, Senior Business Administration major from Smithfield, NC; Lauren Weatherly, Senior Elementary Education major from Durham, NC; Hope Hall, Senior Psychology major from Sanford, NC; Michele Ferebee, Junior Pre-Pharmacy major from Raleigh, NC; and LeAnn Teague, Junior Education major from Winston-Salem, NC.

Fun In The Sun

On Saturday, September 12, Campbell students put aside their books for an afternoon of fun in the sun.

Saturday in the sun was sponsored by Men's and Women's campus and was held in the fountain courtyard. The fun and games began at 2:00 p.m. Students played football, and frisbee while listening to music via jambox and amplifier. A big volleyball game broke out and lasted for about two hours. The game was so intense that it could have lasted another two hours, but because of time was forced to stop.

Shannon Garrett, Women's Campus President, said of the day, "It was a great day. In spite of the heat, everyone had a good time. We're ready for the next major volleyball game."

Students who attended really enjoyed the day. Hopefully this is a tradition that will continue.

Let's Trick or Treat

Halloween is not just for kids! Children have been dressing up in costumes for centuries. To hold with the usual Campbell Halloween students dressed in the weirdest, ugliest, prettiest, or the most comical costume they could find and went 'trick or treating.' Ideas ranged from a pregnant nun to Tammy Bakker. Campbell students make Halloween special because they do not collect candy for themselves, they collect money for World Hunger.

The Wild activities began at 6:45

when the ladies marched onto men's campus to get their attention and as usual — their money! At 7:45 the tables turned and the men came rushing over to Women's Campus to try and get the ladies to look and of course trying to re-coupe their loss.

After two hours of 'trick or treating' everyone headed for the gym to dance the night away. Everyone had fun and raised a little money for World Hunger at the same time.

Music, Music, Music

Music. Everyone loves it. Everyone loves to listen to it. Operating under this assumption, Campbell has concerts! Musicians come into Turner Auditorium, set up mics, speakers, drums, keyboards, electric guitars, and any other paraphernalia they must, and play their particular kind of music.

This year Campbell students enjoyed such top-notch performers as "The Producers" who opened Spring Festival Week; and "Brice Street" who opened for "The Producers" and then made a return trip in the fall.

Contemporary Christian Music lovers also got their share of concerts. In the spring students enjoyed the sound of "Russ Taff" and in October the eight voice ensemble "Truth."

For those who still enjoy the sound of classical music, the Campbell Concert Series offered some outstanding performances including those of its own students.

No doubt about it. If you love music — and we know you do — the concerts of this year were a treat.

Do Dreams Really Come True?

Can you really put a price tag on a dream date? Is it the money, the restaurant, the transportation, or the special date that makes it so valuable?

Freshmen Tracy Bryant and Jill Freese were the lucky winners of a dream date in Raleigh valued at $50, sponsored by Women's Campus.

Tracy and Jill arrived at the Governor's Inn in Raleigh at 6:45 p.m. to enjoy an all-you-can-eat continental cuisine buffet dinner, followed by a "hilarious visit to the smallest town in Texas," a play entitled "Greater Tuna."

Seniors Chris Mewbern and Beth Kennedy enjoyed their second place winnings valued at $25, at Heath's Steakhouse in Dunn before going to the Homecoming Ball in Raleigh.

Bryan Dorm sponsored the Dream

Date Dance held on Friday, September 25 in the Bryan Courtyard. Annette Neal, president of the dorm, said that there was a good turnout considering it was a weekend. "Sound Approach" provided the music while Bryan Dorm provided decorations and refreshments.

Teresa Dowless and Jody Johnson had a special evening as they rode to dinner and the Homecoming Ball in a classy gray limousine. The limousine was courtesy of the Senior Class.

So, which one is it? Money, food or transportation that makes a date special? It seems to me that these couples would have had dream dates without any of those extras — for they each have one another — and what better dream could you ask for?

Love Christ Style

"And now abideth faith, hope, love, these three; but the greatest of these is love." — 1 Corinthians 13:13. Love was the central theme for the four seminars presented by Dr. Jerry Hayner during Christian Focus Week. Love, (both physical and spiritual), relationships, commitment, and sexuality were all discussed by the pastor of Forest Hills Baptist Church in Raleigh.

"What do you do with the human side of love, the body?" he asked. Hayner said that relationships may begin with physical attraction and that this is okay and natural because we are physical beings that are supposed to relate to each other.

Hayner pointed out three problems that will develop if the physical and spiritual aspects of love conflict with each other. First, "if you're not careful, you can become very selfish and self-centered." Secondly, he advised that when a self-centered person enters a relationship, the selfishness can become destructive. The third problem involves commitment in relationships. Hayner said that people are no longer physically attracted to one another so they're getting out of relationships.

"Love Christ Style" involves loving God, loving others, and loving one's self. Christ's love makes all the difference in these relationships; for He is the true illustration of love.

CU Has A Heart

Campbell students come with different personalities, but one thing they all share is a smile. Campbell University is truly a special place and what makes it special is not the buildings or the location but the people.

CU is not a large school but it is a nice place to be. The students are friendly, caring and helpful. Students go out of their way to help. And never will two people pass by each other without a smile or "hello" being exchanged. It's a place filled with love.

The development of the mind is not the only thing students do. They develop friendships, relationships, and a knowledge together that will last a lifetime.

Students may only spend a few years here but there is an impression made on them that they can never change. One can honestly say that there is no other place in the world like CU! So here's to CU and all the adults you shape and mold.

Gaylord the camel: an unforgettable person at Campbell

Treat (1913-1987)

As Campbell began her second century, a reminder of her beginnings came crashing down.

About 100 ladies returning to campus in the fall took up residence in Kitchin dormitory, previously a men's dorm. Why all the upset? Treat was going to be remodeled.

Treat, built in 1913, was the oldest residence hall on campus. The announcement to renovate was made last spring, and initial planning began. When the estimated cost of renovation turned out to be more than originally thought, indeed more than the cost (per square feet) of a new building, trustees made the decision to tear down Treat. When students returned to campus after fall break, it was to find only a patch of dirt where the landmark once stood.

LeAnn Teague, junior, who was an R.A. in Treat said of living there, "I loved it! It was like home. A big house where everybody knew everyone. I wish it was still here." So do many others, I'm sure.

The Amazing CU Players

Sitting in your cushy chair in Ellis Theatre. The house lights go down, everyone gets quiet and the music begins. The curtain rises but all you see is the outline of a set and a person. The spotlight comes on to reveal a woman in tails sitting on a set of multi-colored stairs. She begins her song.

This is only the beginning. For an hour and a half you are glued to your seat with eyes riveted on the stage as the Campbell Players present "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat." The play, taken from the biblical story, traces the path of Joseph, favorite son of Jacob. You sit entranced as you watch Joseph sold into slavery by his brothers, thrown into jail by an over-jealous master, made second-in-command to Pharaoh, and finally re-united with his family. All in music. A narrator in black tails and fishnet hose and a women's chorus add to the outstanding cast.

As you leave Ellis Theatre, you are amazed. You have laughed and been touched. For a while you forgot whom the people on stage were. They became the characters they portrayed. Going in you didn't realize how much pure enjoyment this 90 minutes would be, and as you head back to your dorm, you say to yourself, "Those Campbell Players are amazing!"

A Dramatic Season

In the Spring of '87, the Campbell Players hit the stage in grand style.

In February, they took on the musical "Oliver." Taken from the Charles Dickens novel Oliver Twist, the play focuses on an orphan boy, Oliver, who is taken by a band of thieves, caught stealing, adopted by a family, retaken by the thieves, and then delivered back to the family. The play was delightfully funny in places, emotionally stirring in others. The cast, led by 14 year old Chuck Ragsdale playing Oliver, was outstanding. When awards were handed out at the end of the season, three top honors came from Oliver: Best Actor went to Allen Thomas for his role as Fagin, leader of the gang of thieves; Best Actress was Laura Cadmus for her portrayal of Nancy, the gang member who died for returning Oliver to his family; and Best Supporting Actress went to Chris White for her role as the Artful Dodger, a member of the gang of thieves.

In April the players switched to a more historic mode as they performed the chilling "The Crucible." Set in Salem, Massachusetts during the Puritan Revolution, "The Crucible" deals with the Salem Witch trials. The play was excellently done by the players and also sported a top award winner; Bill Smith snagged Best Supporting Actor for his role as Judge Hawthorne.

Near the end of the semester, the drama department performed three one-act plays. "Fumed Oak," "Sing to Me Through Open Windows," and "Visitors from London" which ran successively for two nights. The Spring plays were well chosen and well performed. The Campbell Players outdid themselves.

Games People Play

People play games for a variety of reasons. They play for money, for fun, for a career, or just for the competition. At Campbell, games are played for the fun, enjoyment and fellowship that comes with it. Dorms and groups play each other in softball, tennis, football, basketball, horse shoes and volleyball. The occasion on which these games are played? There is no special time. Students play them on Beach Day, Field Day, Play Fair, Fun In The Sun, and Intramurals. The purpose to have a little friendly competition, a lot of fun, get rid of some built up energy and tension and Relax!! It is also an excellent opportunity for students to get to know one another outside the classroom and the dorm.

Along with the satisfaction of knowing that you and your teammates won, rewards come in other ways. One in particular, new to this campus, was the "Blizzard of Bucks." Students here were rewarded with money. (Believe it or not, money was actually given away.) "Blizzard of Bucks" was held in Turner Auditorium and some lucky students got to try their luck. Each person filled out a card and dropped it in a box. Then someone drew the names of the lucky players. The players were placed inside the 'Amazing Money Machine' to see how much money they could catch.

Why do people play games? You have some reasons now — fellowship, fun, competition, relaxation and of course — Money!!

Heart of Campbell

"The Heart of Campbell" was truly displayed in Marshbanks Cafeteria during the Valentine's Dance held on February 13, as students danced to the music of "Zipper."

Starting a new tradition, the Freshmen had students vote by ballot for a king and queen of each class upon entering the dance. Halfway through the dance, seniors David Britt and Sherri Taylor were crowned Valentine King and Queen, with the other members of the court including: Juniors Frank Thomas and Amy Goodwin, Sophomores Sam Compton and Michelle Ferebee, and Freshmen Brett

Rice and Kelli Sebastian. The kings received decorated crowns and the queens received tiaras.

Darlene Lominac, Freshman Class Representative, said that "the dance was a big success with a turnout of about 150 people." The freshmen worked really hard to transform Marshbanks Dining Hall with red and white balloons, and table and wall decorations to make the heart of Campbell shine. Students danced to the beat of soul, rock, and the oldies late into the night, bringing in another romantic Valentine's Day.

Creek Forecast

No one thought they would ever see as much white stuff on the ground in Buies Creek. Well, it actually happened — believe it or not!

Students were shocked to wake up and find the ground covered with ice and snow. No one thought it would stay very long. But as day turned to night, the ice and snow remained behind, much to everyone's surprise. Buies Creek was blanketed under a beautiful white cover for almost a week.

Anyone who knows even the slightest thing about snow could tell you it is fun to play in. For the students who were fortunate enough to have their classes cancelled, there was plenty to do. Snowball fights could always be found at any time and place. Girls had to be on the lookout — for fear of being rolled in snow by some guy. Making snow angels was another favorite activity.

We can not forget the most popular activity campus wide . . . snow-sledding! As anyone may guess, there aren't many sleds to be found in the 'Creek! However, students developed their own. (Marshbanks suddenly ran short of trays!)

Students could be found most anywhere zooming down the hills on their personal sleds. All the fun ended by that Friday and all was back to normal, leaving only memories of the day that time stood still in the creek!

“Food Glorious Food”

It was 5:00 p.m. when I worked my way through the large, noisy crowd that pressed toward the doors of Marshbanks Cafeteria to see the main attraction. Finally, I saw it — a tray loaded with all kinds of meat, vegetables, and the prize-winning red-velvet cake for dessert.

It was at this point that I began to ask myself, “Why?” Then I realized that dozens of mothers had given the gift of Marshbanks to their college sons and daughters to enjoy seven days a week, three times a day.

For those who wish to vary their diet, a trip to Dunn, Coats, Lillington, or Erwin is in order. Dunn provides the widest range of food choices including: Pizza Hut, Pizza Inn, Norns’, Mandarin House of Chinese, and all of the fast food restaurants.

Pizza Inn made a welcome comeback in September when it reopened following a damaging fire at the first of the year. Several Campbell students served as hostesses on opening night to welcome students and Dunn residents back.

Closer to the creek can be found a dinner of delight for those with a more expensive budget. Pope’s Barn provides a pleasant dining atmosphere — especially to please a date — and an excellent buffet. For the less expensive budget, Ma’s Grill in Coats serves up the best hamburgers and homecooked meals around.

When the hunger pangs strike at 10, 12, or 3 o’clock, a run to Hardees in Lillington is the ticket. If there’s no time to rush out-of-town, there are always the Creek’s own specialties: Main Street Deli, The Oasis, and Lil’ Dino’s.

So, when you feel a hunger pang coming on, and your stomach begins to talk louder than your roommate — you know it’s time to head for the big cities!

Alligator Bites the Dust

Yes — preppie is out and no one is quite sure what is in. Everyone wants to be fashionable and this year it is not too hard. Fashion ranges from one extreme to another. Denim, from deep blue to frost, is a big thing this year for skirts, dresses, jeans, jackets and hang bags. Girls wear skirts that are straight or flared, to the ankles or above the knees, jeans are tight or baggy, and jackets that are long or stop at the waist. Guys have a choice between jeans that are baggy or tight, with cuffs or without.

Sweaters and shirts are long and baggy or cropped in pastels or natural colors, with double layered socks to match.

Of course one can not forget the fad from the sixties that has returned — tie dye! Students tie-dye shirts, jeans, and anything that can possibly be bleached.

The favorite style of shoes this year for both guys and girls are 'bucs.' However, students sport around in just about any style shoe from tennis shoes to flip flops or sandals.

Accessories for fashion are still very popular. Wide belts, narrow belts, in cloth or metal are seen on the waist of just about every girl. Earrings, big and dangling or small and conservative are on most girls ears. Bows of every possible color and banana clips are the latest in hair accessories.

It really doesn't seem to make any difference what you put on in the morning — just about anything goes as fashionable!

Spring Fever Arrives

A highlight of every school year is Spring Festival Week. This year is no exception.

The week got off to a hilarious start with the comedy of Andy Andrews on Monday, March 16. Andrews, the Comedy Entertainer of the Year for 1985 and 1986, had students rolling in the aisles.

Tuesday night was the night for students to show their stuff in the Air Guitar Contest. Students roared in laughter at MC David Britt's witty antics. After the Air Guitar Contest students made bids for a slave for a day in the slave auction.

Wednesday night calmed down a little with soloist Dave Wopat. But Thursday night was back at the high intensity level with Edward Jackman. Jackman entertained students with his juggling and quick wit. The week concluded on Monday, March 23 with a sensational concert by "The Producers."

Once again, Spring Festival Week was a time for students to kick back, have some fun, and utilize some of the extra energy that spring brings.

"That's What Friends Are For"

You eat with them, walk to class with them, share bathrooms with them, enjoy popcorn and hot chocolate together, and you are surrounded on all sides by them every day — they are your friends.

Acceptance, honesty, and loyalty are the most mentioned traits of a good friend according to students in the creek.

Friendship means liking someone for who they really are and accepting them as a special and unique individual. We all have our own moods, beliefs, dreams, and goals and desire a friend who will accept these as a part of us. Some people are afraid to reveal who they really are to others because they are afraid that others will not like the "real me." This is why we need to stretch our friendship circles a little wider and accept others for what and who they are.

Friendship is confiding your deepest secrets and dreams, with another individual who will honestly listen and keep those dreams alive inside of them for you. Trusting another with your deepest thoughts requires a deep base of honesty on a friendship.

Friendship is committing oneself to another at any cost, making time when there is no time, listening when no one else cares, and supporting you when you can no longer stand alone.

The Boss At CU?

And the winner is . . . Bruce Springsteen! Or rather "Fire Station Road House" doing Bruce Springsteen at Campbell's Air Guitar Contest on Monday, March 17, 1987.

The show opened with "Lisa and Lisa and the Wild Ones" performing the fabulous "Keep Your Hands to Yourself." Some highlights included raisins singing "Heard it Through the Grapevine"; the "Sure Thing's" "Surfin' U.S.A." complete with free frisbees; and sweets from "Sweetness" during their rendition of "Candy."

Coming in fourth place was "Billy Idol" doing "Dancing with Myself" and the "Rebel Yell." Third Place was grabbed by "The B-69's" with "Rock Lobster" and "Private Idaho." The "East Coast Crew" took second place with "Candy" and then "Word Up." And of course "Fire Station Road House" won first prize lip singing the Bosses' "Raise your Hands" and "Santa Claus is Coming to Town."

While the judges were deciding the finalists, the audience was entertained by Master of Ceremonies David Britt who did his classic imitation of Madonna. Britt performed "Papa Don't Preach" and for an encore "Lucky Star." Britt almost stole the show with his performance and his quick wit at the mike.

This year's Contest was lively, energetic, original and definitely entertaining. A great show!

Shh! This is the Library

Rustling newspapers, turning pages of magazines, books being slammed shut, typewriters on the run, and snoring — these are the sounds of the library. Some students go for a quiet escape from dorm life, to sleep, to socialize, and some actually go to study.

Library antics come from all over campus, all with different goals and purposes. The main reasons students said they go to the library are: to study and to meet people or socialize. However, most of the time socializing comes first.

Sanders Jackson, a junior, said that he goes to the library to study and try to get as much done as possible. He found an open table on first floor quiet enough to work, whereas Lauren Weatherly, a senior, said she goes to the stacks to study. Francis Walker, also a senior, admits that her trips to the library are "generally unsuccessful attempts to study."

If studying does become impossible, there's always plenty of other students around to talk to. Jonathon Battle, a junior, said he goes to the library because it's where everyone else goes.

Greg Moore, a senior, and sophomore Curtis Bigelon both go to the library to get away from their noisy dorm rooms. Greg said that the distractions of visitors, TV and food make it very hard to study.

Yet another reason to study in the library is to "watch the opposite sex." Several guys admitted that they go to watch girls and both guys and girls said they went because that is where their boyfriend or girlfriend is studying. And we all know how much studying gets done in pairs!

I think Hunt Dunlap, a senior, was best able to describe the library antic's purpose when he said that he goes to the library "to converse, to read, to suffer, to enjoy."

Celebrez la Vie!

Once upon a time, in the ballroom of the Radisson Hotel in Raleigh, approximately 100 couples dressed in tuxedos and evening gowns, gathered together to celebrate life in a very special way. The Honor Ball was an example of class and elegance as couples were announced as they entered the ballroom for the first time by an elegant gentleman who took their ticket.

While the "Krackers" entertained students with a wide variety of music from the Oldies to Top 40, couples "cut the rug" on the dance floor, gathered at a refreshment table of hors-d'oeuvres, and talked in the lobby, leaving their college worries back at the Creek.

As always, the highlight of the evening was the presentation of the Spring Court. Senior Sherri Taylor escorted by David Britt, was crowned Spring Court Queen and Junior Donna Blalock was crowned Spring Court Princess.

Junior Class President, Lauren Weatherly, said, "the completion of Honor Ball was a dream come true. A great amount of planning and work were put into the dance beginning as early as last fall, because we wanted to make this the best Honor Ball ever."

Truly it was an enchanted evening for the 375 students who attended. The Junior Class put on one of the classiest acts yet and accomplished their goal with style.

CU's Favorite Sport

Of the various and sundry things to do in Buies Creek, our favorite pastime seems to crop up over and over. No, it isn't throwing people in the fountain, or tossing napkins in the cafeteria. It isn't even going to the post office (although this runs a close second). The thing all Campbell students like to do is talk. Everywhere you go, you see groups of two or more students gathered just to shoot the breeze. Students congregate in the Student Center, on the steps of Taylor, in the halls, in the cafeteria, and out in front of CEP. They even assemble to talk in the library.

No matter where they gather — whether it be the main courtyard, the post office, or the library — it is obvious that the students of CU take great pleasure in exercising their jaws.

Traditional Beauty

"Celebrez la Vie" — The Spring Honor Ball was a night of romance and anticipation. The theme, "Celebrez la vie," means 'Celebrate life,' and for hundreds of students and their dates that is exactly what they did.

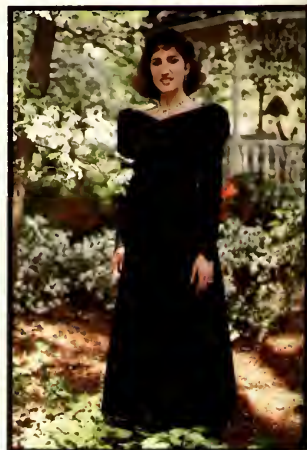

The highlight of the night was the selection of the Spring Court Queen and Princess. As the night continued, the excitement and anticipation grew. Finally, the magic hour arrived. Students gathered around the dance floor and waited patiently for Dean Burgess to make the announcement. Shortly after 10:00, Lauren Weatherly, Jr.

Class President, crowned Miss Sherri Taylor as Spring Court Queen. Sherri was a senior Home Economics major from Rutherfordon, N.C.

Miss Donna Blalock, an Elementary Education major from Fayetteville, was chosen as Princess.

Pig Out '87

Can you imagine having a barbecue and inviting a couple hundred starving students to join you? "PigOut" is Campbell University's answer to a backyard barbecue.

The students flocked to the fountain area to get a good "down-home cooked meal." As for dessert, "See You" played everyone's favorite songs. No one left with a sad face or an empty stomach.

PigOut '87 was sponsored by the Student Government Association. This big event has been a great success since its beginning. Now everyone looks forward to the "PigOut" each year.

Life Is A Beach!

Plastic pools filled with water, a truckload of sand, brightly colored umbrellas, sun glasses, volleyball games, frisbees, paddle balls, beach blankets, ice cold drinks, good music, a bandstand, and hundreds of students dressed in brightly colored summer clothes set the scene for the notorious "Beach Weekend" in Buies Creek.

The event takes place once each semester and is sponsored by the Men's and Women's Executive Council and the Student Government Association Entertainment Committee. This year's events started Friday, September 12 with the Bryan "Dream Date" Dance which was held in the Bryan Courtyard.

The big event that everyone eagerly awaited began on September 13. Saturday morning, students psyched themselves up for a fantastic day of fun in the sun. After lunch, students started to gather around the band. They kicked off their shoes, relaxed and prepared to soak up a few of the final rays of summer. A variety of music was provided by the band for everyone's listening pleasure. They played beach music for those that could shag, and Top 40 for those who could not.

The day's activities provided something for everyone who attended. Students could play games, toss a frisbee, or dance. Of course, there was the involuntary "dip" (or toss) into the fountain to get relief from the heat. There was also an addition to the entertainment — a clown, a big hit with everyone.

The Challenge Begins Now

Campbell University graduated 648 students in the 101st Commencement ceremony held on May 11. The ceremony, presided by Dr. Norman A. Wiggins, president, was highlighted by an address from William E. Poe of Charlotte, the conferring of 5 honorary doctorates and by presentations of special awards.

Seniors Sherri Phillips and George McLaney were selected to receive the Algernon Sydney Sullivan Award for their personal excellence exemplified through service and in keeping with the school's own spiritual standards. Phillips was also honored by being selected for inclusion in the "100 Outstanding American Women College Graduates, Class of '87" by Good Housekeeping Magazine.

Mrs. Ann Buffkin, mother of graduate Danny Buffkin, received an honorary diploma during the Sunday Baccalaureate Service for attending classes at Campbell with her son for the past six years. Danny suffered a severe head injury in a motorcycle accident in April 1981 when he was a freshman and has since required assistance to attend classes.

Dr. Wiggins challenged the graduates to listen to God and see the world through the eyes of Jesus. William Poe spoke about what lies ahead for the graduates after commencement and what it is about. He told the graduates, "Consider carefully the route you will take and check it repeatedly at mileposts along the way. Just as there have been moments of disappointments and despair in your careers thus far, you can expect more of the same from here on." Poe ended his address by reciting a passage from Holy Writ as a final challenge for the future of all who witnessed the proud moment.

"WHEN YOU'RE HOT ... YOU WIN"

"The next award is for the Most Improved Squad. It goes to the squad that has shown the biggest improvement throughout the week. The winner is Campbell University!" These exciting words capped off a week of hard work and determination at Universal Cheerleading Association Camp located this year at East Tennessee State University in Johnson City, Tennessee. Campbell had to compete against 80 other college squads including UNC, ECU, South Carolina, Notre Dame, and Kentucky (last year's National Champs).

"We worked very hard for this award. We were up every morning by 6:00 and usually didn't go to bed until after 10:00. Ninety percent of that time was spent practicing stunts, cheers, and chants over and over again until we got them right," said co-captain Michelle Ferebee.

"We had a great time but it was exhausting. The camp was new for Campbell. We worked so hard the whole squad slept the entire eight hour trip home," said the other co-captain Sam Compton. The cheerleaders were especially proud of Gaylord, who captured the Spirit Stick for Most Spirited Mascot. Unfortunately Gaylord's girlfriend, Gladys, was not able to attend the camp.

The cheerleaders could be seen at soccer games and basketball games cheering for the Camels. "Soccer is difficult to cheer for. It's hard to get a crowd motivated when they can't see you. Basketball is harder on the squad, but the results are more satisfying. The basketball crowds come to motivate the team," said cheerleader Judy Stewart. The Fighting Camels don't always win but our cheerleaders try. "It's rewarding to go to a game and see your fellow students with so much spirit. It really helps the crowd to get involved," said LeAnn Teague, a dedicated fan.

NEW COACH, NEW GOALS, NEW SEASON

The 1987 Campbell Baseball Team went through some changes this year. The month of January marked not only the beginning of a new year, but also the beginning of a new coaching career for Campbell's Head coach, Mike Caldwell. A former major league pitcher, Caldwell replaced previous coach, Calvin Koonce. With only two months before the opening of the 1987 season, Caldwell got to know his players as they got to know him. "The team was in good shape when I came," replied Caldwell. He stated that he was looking forward to his future as a coach at Campbell University because of its Division I ranking in the NCAA. Another reason is because of the fine traditions and rich history in the field of baseball here at Campbell.

Taylor Field was lined with many talented, hard working, and dedicated players. This year's starting line-up consisted of: Cory Satterfield, Chris Mitta, Vinny Mangino, Bob Palentchar, Greg Cloninger, Randy Hood, Lincoln Miller, Brock Gaston, Henry Rochelle, and Charlie Letizia. Greg Cloninger led the season's record book for the most game winning RBI's with five. Following close behind were: Randy Hood and Bob Palentchar, each with four. Greg Cloninger also led the Camels with the highest batting average of .384. The next highest went to Bob Palentchar (.379) and Chris Mitta (.365). Chris Mitta also held the team record for the most grand slams in the season. Greg Cloninger received recognition for being chosen by the Atlanta Braves to play ball for their rookie team in the Appalachian League. Cloninger set nine records in his college career and finished as Campbell's top left-handed hitter (.349).

The team's overall 1987 record was 25-20 with a record of 8-2 in the Big South Conference. Tough competition ranged from Big South Conference Teams, Winthrop and Coastal Carolina, on down to ACC schools, Duke and Wake Forest.

The Camels enjoyed playing the ACC Teams. Playing them gave the guys a challenge and it also brought more recognition to Campbell. Coach Caldwell replied, "I believe Campbell has a strong baseball program and can compete with any team in the state."

Altogether, this year was certainly a successful one, yet the team needed some work in certain areas: fundamental plays by the pitcher, fielding the ball, and in general, having the pitchers watch the ball. A major strength in the team was its hitting power. Caldwell gave this advice to his team before they would go out onto the field, "Play hard, relax, remember what you've learned, forget any mistakes you make and most of all have fun!" He also reminds them, "Baseball is important but an education is more important. Always play to your potential but remember it's only a game."

The Coach already has plans for a better season. He feels fan support is greatly needed and certainly appreciated. Fan support is really important because it shows that students support the team and want them to win. The 1988 season means new goals, a better team and more victories for Campbell baseball.

BIG SOUTHERN CONFERENCE TOURNAMENT

SOFTBALL

Instant Replay!

"Relying on a single pitcher and only a strong defense to get us through the season made things a little tough. There were times when the player morale would drop and I felt like it was my responsibility to stay positive for the team. That's hard to do when it's your first year as head coach," said Lady Camel softball Coach Antionette Matthews. The 1987 Campbell softball team finished the season with a mediocre record of 12-19 and a disappointing 2-10 in the Big South.

Ruth Marks was the only pitcher that the Lady Camels could count on and the team's overall batting average was low.

The team had several outstanding players however, such as Jan Faulkner who led in RBI's and Carol Wynne, the recipient of the Big South's George A. Christenberry Award for Academic Excellence. Wynne led the team in stolen bases and batting. The Lady Camels also looked to catcher Kris Olgati for her leadership on and off the field. Kris was named to the Big South All-Conference team at the end of the season.

Matthews sent a warning to all of the Campbell adversaries for the 87-88 season. "Watch out for the Lady Camels. We have had an excellent recruiting year and now have two new solid additions to our pitching staff: Rosemary Caldwell and Yuko Inoue. Our batting is improving with every practice and I feel like the team has the energy to play some quality softball." That season has already proven to be shaping up nicely. The Lady Camels finished second in the 1987 Seahawk Invitational; and have proven the "Big Mo"mentum can carry any team a long way.

GOLF

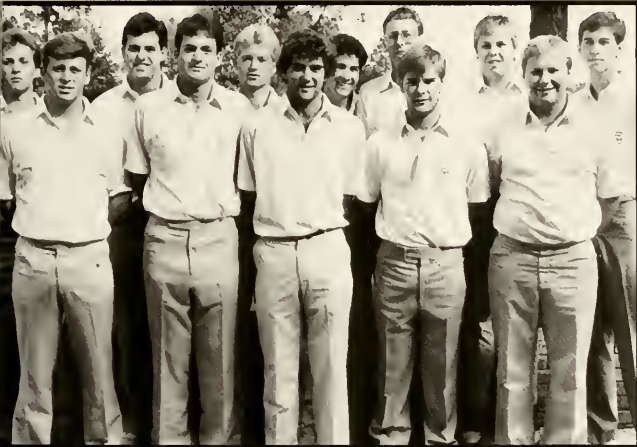

CARR LEADS TEAM TO THE TEE

The Campbell University golf team, under the leadership of Athletic Director Wendell Carr, finished their fall season in Kitty Hawk, NC at the Seascope Collegiate Invitational! The team finished ninth out of thirteen teams. Freshman Dirk Fennie led all the other Camels by shooting a two-day score of 150. Coach Carr gave the team a lot of credit for guts and courage after competing against six top twenty schools including Maryland, South Carolina, and NC State. Carr assumed the duties of head coach after the departure of veteran Coach Danny Roberts. He stressed the fact that the team is very young and needs to overcome inconsistent play, which is always a major obstacle for any amateur golfer. The golfers always utilize the off-season for practice and results are shown by the production of better team and individual scores in the spring.

LASTING EFFORT

Webster's Dictionary defines "track and field" as relating to or being involved in any of the various competitive athletic events (as running, jumping, and weight throwing) performed on a running track and on the adjacent field.

The Campbell University Track team competed in all of these areas and many more during their various meets. One of the team's strongest assets was the performance of Hugh Brown Sager (better known as H.B.). A senior from Woodstock, Virginia, Sager is Campbell's top-rated decathlete. He has to be able to excel in ten different track and field team events not just one.

One of the major disadvantages to running on a track and field team is the rigor of the schedule. Unlike football or basketball the home and away games are not evenly spread out. During the 1987 season Campbell did not host a single track and field event. They did however travel extensively to such places as Blacksburg, Virginia and Gainesville, Florida.

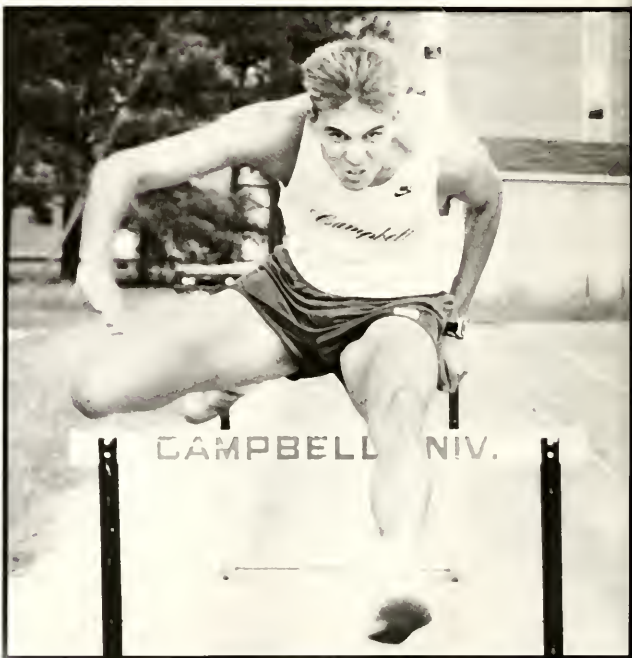

Coach Paul Smith in his first year at Campbell expressed his gratitude to all of his dedicated athletes. "They are a great group to work with. They give 110% and are always on time for practice. I have enjoyed my first year here at Campbell."

Smith left at the end of the school year to pursue his PhD and was replaced by new Track coach Terry Rose. He also praised the athletes for their dedication and consistent determination. Overall it was a very productive year for the Campbell "Running, Jumping, and Weight Throwing" Camels.

FATIGUE ALWAYS SETS IN

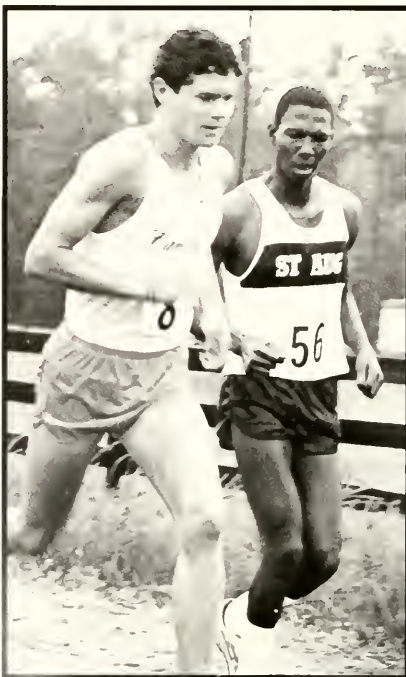

Most sports have the distinct advantage of a loyal partisan crowd. The life of the cross country runner is different. Imagine yourself standing in a pack of fifty or more runners, waiting anxiously for the starting gun. The gun is fired, your heart jumps, and your legs move unconsciously, as if they have a mind of their own.

The first mile is always the easiest. You say to yourself "This is a piece of cake. Anybody can do this." A few miles later it starts to rain and the ground becomes saturated; you realize that you're not even halfway through the course and you feel as if the world is going to end. There is no one around to comfort you or say, "C'mon you can make it. Don't give up!"

After an extended period of time of running through the woods, you round a corner hoping to see any sign of a fan or a teammate. There is no one there — just you and the rest of the race. By this point you realize that you're not racing any person in particular; this cross country event has turned into a personal challenge. It's your body's way of saying, "I dare you to run anymore. I don't think you can make it much farther."

Under the leadership of first year coach Terry Rose, Campbell's Cross Country team developed the art of disciplined running. These dedicated individuals could be seen around campus every afternoon running by the softball field or the Fine Arts building. According to Coach Rose, Senior Ken Frenette had an outstanding season. He won the "Winthrop Invitational" and had many other fine finishes. Senior Anne Eveker, last year's MVP, also had a tremendous season. "These two dedicated seniors have provided Campbell with an extraordinary four years as top cross country stars."

IF AT FIRST YOU DON'T SUCCEED . . .

What can you do when your team is on a losing streak? What do you say when someone asks you what the team record is, and it's zero to twenty five.

The Lady Camels found out that all you can do when at first you don't succeed is to indeed try, try again. Because of all the long hours of hard practice, the boring road trips, and all the frustrating matches, you feel so angry — the team just doesn't deserve to lose.

What pulls the athlete through those trying times? It is that special pride, determination and inner spirit that comes from deep inside and gives them the strength to carry on. All the players have good and bad days, but there's always a new challenge to be taken on plus a new defeat or victory to add to the list.

With the leadership of first year coach Betty Jo Clary, the Lady Camels went into the new season with hopes and goals for a better year. There were only three returning starters to the team: Julie Benton, Andrea Canady, and Jane Ray.

Because of being such a young team, there's always room for improvement such as blocking, tackling, and jumping. Improvement could already be found in the areas of serving, passing and setting the ball.

Coach Clary replies, "Our problem lies in our consistency as a team. It's such a frustrating game because our momentum changes. All we could do was take it one match at a time, try to set up a defense and figure out where to hit the ball."

A SEASON OF CHANGE

The 1987 Campbell Soccer Team experienced a season of change.

Under the direction of first year coach Gary Hall, the "Fighting Camels" achieved a 6-10-1 record. Coach Hall, who replaced Coach Tim Morse, previously coached three years at Le noir-Rhyme College. Hall was excited about coming to Campbell because of the "outstanding commitment on the part of the University to soccer." Because of past outstanding records in the sport of soccer, Campbell has earned a reputation of tradition and excellence in the Big South Conference.

Leading the Camels on the field was senior team captain, Quinton MacDonald. Quinton returned this year to the team upon being red-shirted after a knee injury during last year's season. The backbone of the team consisted of: Darren Dawson, Chuck Anderson, Amir Elzeni, Matt Gengler, Jim Morrissey, Chris Perkins, Mark Barrett and Randy Seal. The sophomores, Rico Berrios and Peter Moore, were a very important part of the team and were there when they needed them most. Several outstanding freshmen were added to the squad's roster this year. They were: Juha Miettinen, Chip Brown, John Payne, Waldemar Krol, Ray Morton, Michael Perry, Michael Huffstetler and Gary Ragan.

Being such a new team, the booters ran into some difficulties during the season. Consistency was a problem towards the end. According to midfielder Quinton MacDonald, "It was a disappointing year, but I really enjoyed playing. We are a better team than what our record shows. I feel we just had a few bad breaks." Improvement was obvious in the last matches of the year. The players really improved with their skills and knowledge. There was more time allotted for people who had not played very often in the previous season.

Much of the team's success and improvement was the result of hard work and determination. Dedication to the sport and long afternoons of practice were two important elements in the life of the athletes. Support of fellow teammates and a word of praise were sometimes the only rewards the athletes would receive. Many of the players felt Coach Hall gave them all the confidence in the world. According to junior Chuck Anderson, "Coach never gave up on us. He knew we could pull through at the end. We put the game behind us and never gave up, therefore, we were a better team in the end."

On Thursday November 5, the Camels took on the Winthrop Eagles in the conference tournament at Conway, S.C. The match was a tough one from start to finish because both teams wanted a shot at the top. Both teams fought hard to win. It was the toughest match all season. The game stayed 0-0 throughout the first half. Then we scored in the second half with a goal from Matt Gengler. With seven minutes on the clock, Winthrop scored and from there the match went into two overtimes. The decision was made for a third overtime which ended in a sudden death situation. The final score was Winthrop 2, Campbell 1.

With the experience the team gained this year, the Camel booters are looking forward to a new season. Next year looks very promising and the Tournament should be well with-in Campbell's grasp.

MEN'S BASKETBALL

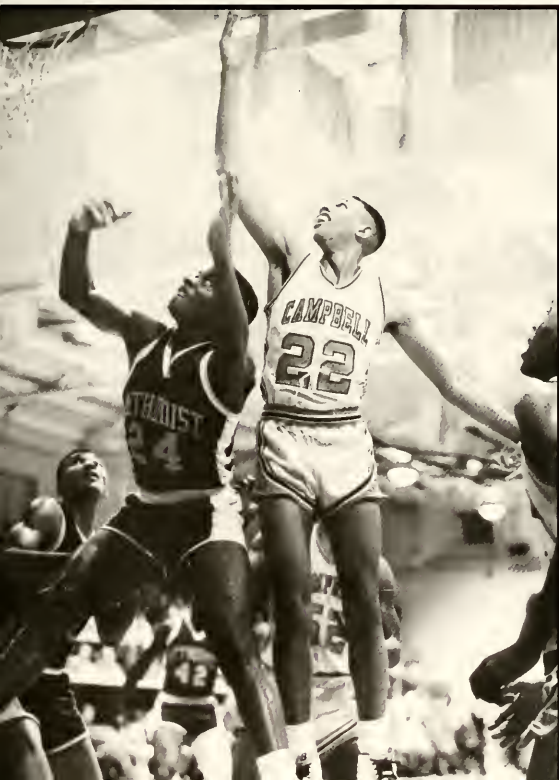

THE THRILL OF VICTORY

The 1988 Men's Basketball team came out fighting for a grand season and finished with a respectable 11-14 season record. Though they completed the season with a 3-8 conference record, they played extremely hard and came close to having more wins than they actually had. Under Head Coach Billy Lee, the Camels had a fairly successful year. Coach Lee, in his third year at Campbell, led his team through several challenging games.

The Camels opened the season with an exhibition game against the Irish National Team. The game gave Campbell's squad a boost towards an exciting and stimulating season. The matchup ended with a 84-74 win for the Camels. Henry Wilson led the Camels with 26 points, while Sanders Jackson and Brad Childress had 14 and 10 points respectively.

The game with Methodist College proved that Campbell was indeed on the right track and victory was just ahead. The first game of the season gave the Camels the confidence they needed for the games ahead. The end result was Campbell's 133-84 win. The 133 points set a new school record. As a team, the cagers knew they could do anything.

How could the Camels top such an awesome win? Well, Coach Lee took his team down to Orlando, Florida to compete in the second annual Merrill-Lynch Classic.

Campbell made it to the final game against Central Florida. And Campbell defeated them by a score of 91-82. This was a wonderful victory! News of the great conquest raced through the campus like wildfire. It was something that made us proud, something to talk about. Campbell University was number one and we loved every minute of it.

One player, Henry Wilson, really went beyond his expected potential only to reach an ultimate point of satisfaction. Wilson passed the 1,000 point mark in his college career scoring. He is only the fifteenth player in Campbell's history to do so. He also led the Big South Conference in scoring with an average of 18.7 points per game.

Another player that deserves recognition for his outstanding dedication is senior Derrick Hensley. Hensley was always there to gather and organize his teammates. He made sure the coach's plan was always carried out.

Altogether, the team had an exceptionally good year. Campbell University recognizes the fact that they have a fine group of athletes to represent them. Athletics is an important part of this university and it holds a fine reputation of tradition and dedication.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

A SEASON OF SUCCESS

What could be better than a season of winning? A season of great playing could be.

That is just what the Lady Camels did this year. Besides the many wins they had, they also accomplished a great season of play. Strengthening of defense was the main objective this year, with a strong concentration on passing and blocking out.

Coach Wanda Watkins, in her seventh year of coaching at Campbell, led her team through a very competitive and challenging season. Our most difficult competitor this year proved to be UNCC, but the ultimate challenge came with the Radford Highlanders. Radford, a major rival for the Lady Camels, took the Big South Conference title away from Campbell in 1987. This year's conference tournament was held in Buies Creek which was a major advantage for the Camels.

The Lady Cagers played many exciting games during the season. One such game was against UNC-Asheville. The faithful Campbell fans flocked to Carter Gym on the eve of January 15, 1988 to watch the Lady Camels battle the Lady Bulldogs. Starters for the Camels were: Seniors — Julie Skinner, Regina McKeithan; Juniors — Denise Ford, Tonya Colwell; and Sophomore Cathy Borden.

The Camels led the entire first half. They set a fast pace early in the game and pushed the Bulldogs into a corner. The Bulldogs knew they had to strengthen their defense in order to pull off a win.

Basket after basket sent waves of excitement through the crowd. Regina McKeithan was sent to the foul line many times and collected several extra points. Julie Skinner and Denise Ford were star rebounders for the first half. Senior Jeannie Bierce hit her third three-point shot as the buzzer sounded to help the Camels maintain their lead at halftime of 45-29.

When the second half began both teams came out fighting and were ready to win. UNC-Asheville did everything they possibly could but they were no match for the overpowering Camels. The game ended in a final of 90-67.

Another exciting game was the match up with archival Radford. The Highlanders played a very competitive game. The fast paced momentum on the court gave rise to excitement in the crowd. There was never a dull moment throughout the 40 minutes of play. The final score of 71-63 proved who the better team was that night. The win put Campbell in the number one spot in the conference.

The Lady Camels are overall a stronger team than many of their conference opponents. Dedication and hard work puts Campbell's players ahead. Senior Julie Skinner was ranked seventh in the nation in steals, while senior Regina McKeithan was ranked twenty-first in the nation in scoring.

Campbell's Women's Basketball team has really made a name for themselves this year. They celebrated their twentieth victory on February 24, 1988. This was the first time they had twenty wins in a regular season. Yes, it was certainly a season of success.

HARD WORK AND DEDICATION

Campbell Wrestling can be defined several ways but the only way to grasp the true meaning is to observe an actual match. Hardwork, hours of practice, working out in the weightroom, making weight, and striving for overall improvement was on the minds of every wrestler. Dedication really means a lot in every sporting event and is especially found in wrestling. The only way to be the best is to do your best.

The Campbell wrestlers are certainly among the best in the Mid-South Conference. Led by Coach Gary Hartman, the grapplers had a very successful season and took second place in the Mid-South Conference Tournament. Another important victory was over Duke University in duels competition. Playing such highly ranked teams is very good for Campbell wrestling.

In a match with NC State, Campbell held their ground quite well. NC State, who was ranked seventh in the nation, defeated the Camels by only a few points. Anthony Cox, who was nationally ranked among the top 20, easily pinned his opponent. Rob Sottile, last year's All-American hopeful, easily attained a win. Fred Alexander also accomplished an overpowering win.

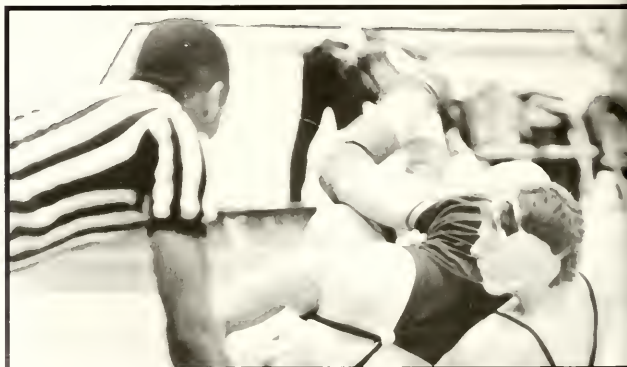

This year's team really had the control and the power they needed for winning. The only bad aspect of the season was the injuries to the team. This year the Camels proved that anything can be overcome by hardwork and dedication.

LADY NETTERS RACK UP SUCCESSFUL SEASON

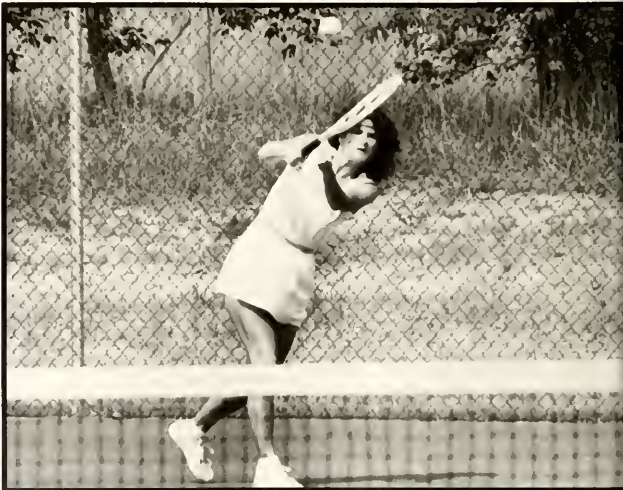

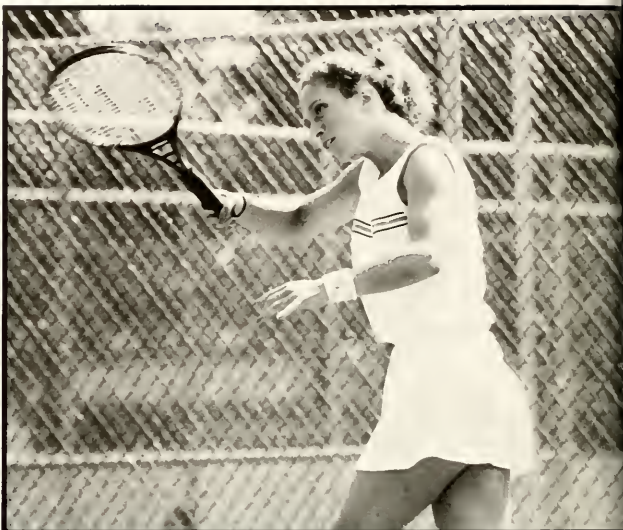

The lady camel netters under the direction of coach Frances Lloyd, proved Campbell was ready for NCAA competition. The ladies finished fifth in the Big South Conference behind Radford. The women's tennis team completed their first season in the NCAA with a record of 15-12.

The successful season was attributed to the team's strength in singles matches. Strong competition was always to be found on the court. The toughest competition came from Atlantic Christian College and Coastal Carolina.

The women's tennis team consisted of talented, hard working dedicated players. Two of those players included: Top Seated Missy Register and Second Seated Karen Poole. Karen Poole was also recognized during the season when she was given the coaches award. Susan Mattocks, who was Third Seat, received the team's most valuable player award.

One player does not make a team. Other members included: Lisa Van Meter, Deanna Gaskins, Laura May and Antoinette Birknes. After taking third place in the Meredith Invitational Tennis Tournament, Coach Lloyd commented, "Our strength lies in our singles while weak points are in the doubles." The team's goals for the season included: gaining strength in doubles, balancing scoring and intensifying matches. "I feel we did well for our first NCAA season. We are looking forward to next year with bigger and better things to come."

Determination Leads to A Winning Edge

Game ... Set ... Match. The Campbell Men's Tennis Team, under the leadership of Coach Kenny Doyle, always heard those words whether winning or losing. The team had a winning season (17-16) and finished fourth in the Big South Conference despite injuries to key players. Coach Doyle attributed much of the team's early success to number one seed Arturo Mecendez but was proud of the other players pulling together. Other team leaders included Tim Reynolds the MVP, and Coaches Award recipient Reggie Hester. According to Coach Doyle, Hester and Reynolds won the number two doubles title in the Big South Conference, other doubles teams also did well and claimed All-Conference recognition. "Overall we had a good year. Coach Doyle was very tough on the team but was also a good morale builder. Whenever I won a match he was full of praise," said doubles player Dan "Chow Mein" Lai.

Intramurals

Involve Everyone

"I really like the concept of intramurals. It allows students to become involved in sporting events such as flag football, volleyball, or basketball. We all can't be starting athletes on the various school teams," said Tony Stamper, a sophomore, who quarterbacked the "T.D. Crew." The intramural program is sponsored and scheduled by the Physical Education Department under the leadership of chairman, Dr. Harry Larche.

Student Congress Reflects Student Interests

Student Congress set and attained some high goals for this year. The Student Honor Code and Coffeehouse, "Chele's Place," were two items that received top priority. A student opinion survey provided Congress with a reading of constituent desires, and a number of resolutions were passed in an effort to transform those desires into reality. Part of the energy found in Student Congress was due to the great amount of constituent interest demonstrated in the previous spring by the large voter turn-out. There were more votes cast in the SGA Executive Officer election than in any election on record. Class officer elections were also tightly contested, with a large amount of student interest in evidence at the polls.

Executive Council Builds Confidence Through Positive Results

Service to the students of Campbell University was the main goal of the Student Government Association's Executive Council. Kevin Clark, SGA President, stated "Student Government is not a club. To fulfill its mission it must serve the student body." The Executive Council set a goal of being more accessible to the student body and reflecting student needs.

This year's SGA theme was "Faith in Government." By providing leadership and policy initiatives the Executive Council helped to strengthen student trust in the SGA. Kevin Clark noted "The way to get the confidence of the student body is to show them through positive results that SGA can make a difference."

Conduct Council Protects the Interests of Students and School

Billy Dennis (Conduct Council Chairman), Stan Leonard, Kenneth Mossey, Kimela Blackburn, Back row: Mr. Larry Nicholson, Billy Sewell, Dean Philip Melvin, Mrs. Mary Bates Sherwood, James Rogers

Contrary to the opinion one may get from this year's group picture, the Student Conduct Council set a standard of consistency and fairness. Chairman Billy Dennis believed that the punishment should fit the crime. He stated that "if someone gets in a food fight they should clean up the cafeteria for a while."

He also believed that fairness to all students sometimes demanded that severe penalties be imposed. He noted that cheating hurt the cheater, his classmates, and the University as a whole. He held the view that one does not live in a vacuum, and therefore one's actions affected others.

— Tom Murray

Elections Committee Ensures Integrity and Fairness

Elections determined who would serve in the various positions in Student Congress. It was the task of the Elections Committee to see that they were conducted fairly and in accordance with the rules.

The spring elections were noted for the intensity of the races and the closeness of the ballots. The Elections Committee ensured that only valid votes were cast in each election.

The fall elections presented a different problem for the Committee, when several candidates failed to file an expense report. The rules were enforced and another election was held. Election Committee Chairman Yvonne Murray said, "It was the only equitable way to deal with it."

Public Relations Committee Does More Than Publicity

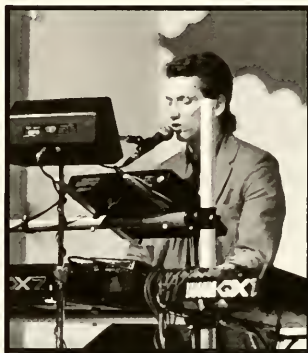

It sounded like an easy assignment. All that needed to be done was to keep students informed of campus activities. It wasn't a difficult task, it just took time, and lots of it.

Hope Hall and her associates did more than attempt to keep students informed about activities. The Public Relations committee initiated a bus service to Raleigh to Campbell students. They also looked for ways to strengthen the lines of communication between the students and the faculty and administration.

Hope Hall believed that the key to student growth and involvement is responsibility. With that in mind she gave each member of her committee a specific area of responsibility. She thereby trained her staff to be future leaders.

Men's Campus Executive: Knights in Shining Armor

Men's Campus Executive set a goal of obtaining greater unity between Men's and Women's Campuses. Men's Campus President, Mack Grainger, stated that "... the Women's Campus President and I have worked hard to do things together." He also perceived a need to be available and to better meet the needs of Men's Campus.

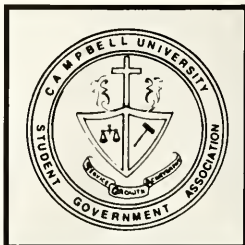

Mack made a habit of taking things as they came. He noted that although losing Baldwin and Kitchin to Women's Campus meant closer living conditions for the men, it also meant that the men didn't have to go so far to see the women.

Mack stated that he tried "to take every situation and look at the good and the bad; enjoy the good and learn from the bad." With an outlook like that to guide Men's Campus and with Women's Campus closer, it was a fun year.

Women's Campus Executive: Having Fun and Helping Others

Women's Campus Executive officers went out of their way to brighten up Buies Creek weekends this year. More activities were scheduled for weekends to provide students with the opportunity to enjoy campus life without having to dread an early class. This came about partly through Shannon Garrett's desires to "create interest among students and get them involved."

The Dream Date and the Dating Game were two activities that generated student involvement. Moreover, Women's Campus involvement extended beyond the social aspects of the college life. They supported a child overseas through the Christian Children's Fund, participated in Trick or Treat for World Hunger, and laid the groundwork for Women's Campus activities.

Entertainment is hard work

Entertainment that was not only diversified but consistently enjoyable was the goal of the Entertainment committee. The group worked together to successfully produce acts that left the audience feeling that their time was well spent.

It was not always easy. Tom Wopat conflicted with pictures, but the show was memorable. No one there will ever hear "Killing Me Softly" quite the same way again.

Sylvia Baker's philosophy that one should "be happy with yourself; things will always work out for the best" reflected her perennially cheerful disposition and an abiding faith in God. With that faith and the assistance of her committee, she overcame all obstacles to provide consistently excellent entertainment.

Inter-Organizational Council Brings It All Together

Bigger, better, and more effective were the goals of the Interorganizational Council. IOC worked to help create more clubs to promote student interests, gave clubs incentives to increase their membership, and helped clubs to develop better leadership. They also worked on a synopsis of campus clubs and organizations so that new students can now easily find those that pique their interests.

John-Mark Mitchell believes that "Leaders are created. Anyone can be a strong leader if they know what to do." IOC reflected that belief by creating leaders and what to do so that they could in turn help to strengthen their clubs.

Rules Committee Examines Foundations of Student Government

Rules, usually in the form of a constitution, form the basis for all modern governments, and Campbell University's Student Government is no exception to that rule. The Rules Committee is tasked with ensuring that the constitution says exactly what the Student Congress wants it to mean. This is not an easy job, and intent is sometimes difficult to express concisely.

Committee Chairman Cynthia Balogh stated that she didn't want to "change the constitution just to change the constitution." She felt that as the constitution becomes a little closer to as perfect as humanly possible with each year, a time will come when the Rules Committee will need to concern itself only with changes to the by-laws, and the constitution will remain unchanged.

Academics Committee Studied Ways to Improve Education

Getting more value for the dollar spent on education is the goal of this year's Academics Committee. An inquiry was made into the possibility of extending library hours, and an arrangement was made with the Administration to include the listing of minor degrees on the graduation certificates of deserving graduates.

Mary Jane Cobb, the Committee Chairman, stated that "the cost of education makes it imperative that all students get the most for their money." She further noted that the emphasis on academic integrity is a necessary requirement to keep the value of a Campbell degree high, and stated that "when a student cheats, he cheats us all."

Reporting the events of interest to Campbell students is the job of the Campbell Times. That meant late nights covering the event, later nights writing the story, and into the wee hours putting the paper together. Added to that were the Friday trips to the printing plant in Benson. But then, nobody ever said that reporting was an easy life.

The Times is unique among Campbell student publications because the deadline panic is a weekly affair, leaving hardly any time for even a scream to assuage exasperation if something goes wrong, such as the office is to be painted the same day that deadlines are due. But then, some people just enjoy pressure.

The Pine Burr Produces Annual Excellence

Putting together a first-class annual was no easy task, a fact to which all members of the Pine Burr staff will attest. A lot of hard work and dedication was required of each staff member.

Production actually started last Spring. Editors were selected for the annual and for its sections. A theme was chosen by the staff, as well as unifying elements. The rudiments of layout and design were learned and actual work on some sections of the yearbook was begun. Deadlines were met and sweated over after production began in earnest last fall. Finally the last bits were sent to the factory in time to be delivered by Publications Day.

AERho Broadcasts Its Message

CUBS, the Campbell University Broadcasting Society, is the local chapter of Alpha Epsilon Rho. The purpose of the society is to encourage a better understanding of the broadcasting field and to help its members gain experience in the field.

This year the campus radio station, WCCE, adopted programming aimed more toward Campbell students, by airing a mix of Christian music styles and programs. Allen Thomas, the station manager, noted that student response has been good. He further stated that WCCE "fits in a niche, performing a service unique to this area."

The station's purpose has been to provide a public service to the area, give Campbell students an opportunity to work in broadcast journalism, and represent the university.

Allen Thomas was not surprised by the positive student responses to increased Christian music. He was involved with students outside the station. He recently graduated himself and established a personal policy of treating students as equals, with respect for them as adults; continuing the Campbell tradition of caring.

Paul Green Society Returns to the Theater

Mark Twain once noted that rumors of his death were an exaggeration. The same could be said of the Paul Green Society, which reemerged this year, stronger than ever.

The Paul Green Society was established to further the dramatic interests of both Campbell students and the community. President Mark Womack believed that every student should do at least one play during their time at Campbell. He also noted that drama is a major that should be considered by anyone who is undecided, further noting that real experience can be gained by doing plays.

The actors and actresses, technicians, and musicians who make up the Paul Green Society wanted every student to see and enjoy at least one production at Campbell. Shows like "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" went a long way toward fulfilling that dream.

Forensics Society Experience Speaks for Itself

Last year some students had a dream. Campbell University could become a bastion of critical analysis and informed discussion. Frank Atkins, Tom Murray, and LeAnn Teague transformed that dream into the Campbell University Forensics Society.

The student body was exposed to some of the formats of forensic speaking, which includes debate, prepared original oratory, and extemporaneous speaking, during a CEP program. Society members were given training in the various aspects of public speaking.

LeAnn Teague, the society's Vice President, summed up the advantages of obtaining a background in public speaking by saying, "Public speaking skills are necessary with any college degree, that is if you want to be successful!"

Campbell Choir Builds the Entire Person

The Campbell University Choir, under the direction of Dr. Paul Yoder, was an experience socially, physically, and spiritually — which broadened the entire person. The choir, consisting of music majors as well as majors from other fields, offered a large variety of music both secular and sacred ranging from popular to classical tunes. Two five-day tours were among the activities of Campbell's choir. The fall tour took place in Western North Carolina, and the spring tour included Virginia, Maryland, and North Carolina. Computer Information Association Has No Secrets

When most people hear the initials "CIA," they immediately think of a Federal spy group. The CIA here has an interest in developing computer skills, and that is all the two groups have in common outside of their initials.

The Computer Information Association helped its members prepare for the future after college by inviting guest speakers, including recent Campbell graduates, to talk about their jobs and what is required of them.

The CIA also provides social opportunities such as cookouts for fun and fellowship. The social gatherings are paid for by occasional fund raisers that were designed to be almost as much fun as the socials.

Math Club Figures To Get Ahead

AIDS research was in the news this year, and the Math Club helped to collect data on public knowledge of the disease by conducting a survey. They also conducted a survey of student attitudes towards mathematics.

Kenny Sykes, the Math Club president, said the "math is used for more than teaching." The Club brought back graduates from Campbell's math program to help explain how math is used in various business applications. Kenny also noted that on the average math is financially the most rewarding undergraduate degree offered at Campbell.

The Math Club also looked for ways to encourage students in other programs to minor in math. Kenny noted that Club membership included a biology major and a psychology major.

Walker Biology Club Goes Back To Nature

Getting undergraduate students involved with wild flora and fauna is one of the purposes of the Walker Biology Club. The club participates in such diverse activities as canoe trips, hikes, and population density counts. All of these activities were planned with an eye toward giving club members a better understanding and appreciation for the world in which they live.

Another purpose of the club is to give them first hand experience in some of the areas associated with applied biology, including wildlife management and forestry. The club is also known for its consistently excellent Parents' Day booths and its annual hot dog sale.

History Club: Passing the Torch of Heritage

History Club members witnessed a banner year for club growth and activity. For the first time they elected officers and were truly organized. The club instilled an awareness of heritage and traditions by reviewing the present. This was accomplished through field trips, slide presentations, and films.

President Angie Hewlett noted that "sensitivity to the needs of the entire group" contributed to the growth of the club. That sensitivity was extended to others as the club worked to increase the understanding that their fellow students have of their heritage.

Along with the Social Work program that formed at Campbell in 1986, a new club was formed on the university campus: the Social Work Organization. It consisted of students in the Social Work program and other students interested in social work. The purpose of the organization was to provide a focal point for the energies of members and to identify and address the collective interests, needs, and concerns of this group. In order to promote the organization, a cookout was planned for all interested members. The faculty advisor for this organization was Mr. Pete Campbell.

North Carolina Student Legislature Makes Things Happen

Learning the legislative process is the main goal of the North Carolina Student Legislature. The best way to learn in a situation such as this is to learn by doing, and that was what the NCSL members did. The members attended sessions in which issues and bills were presented and debated. Forty percent of the bills passed by the state NCSL are subsequently passed by the North Carolina State Legislature.

Bobby Woods notes that the organization is an excellent means for members to learn the processes of legislative debate, including the use of Robert's Rules of Order. It is also one activity in which one may see two people debate fiercely over an issue and later laugh together at a social function.

Psychology Club is for the Jung at Heart

This year the John A. Freeman Psychology Club assisted its members by presenting featured speakers on a new graduate school program that may be opened in Fayetteville, coping with multiple sclerosis, and the effects of social programs on motivation.

Hope Hall, the Psychology Club president, noted that the club is designed to "be beneficial to all members, whether they are majoring or minoring in psychology or just interested in psychology." She also stated that "the purpose of life is growth and the Psychology Club promotes growth."

The Foreign Language Club jumped off to a great start in 1987, its inaugural year, nearly winning the IOC Club of the Year Award. This year they built on that tradition of excellence.

The club placed greater emphasis on recruiting more foreign-born students and American-born students interested in foreign language and culture.

Scott Avery, the club President, designed a program of speakers to "achieve better world understanding, alleviate prejudices, and promote unity."

College Republicans Look Forward to the Future

College Republicans looked forward to continued growth this year and were not disappointed. The organization has been growing steadily over the past decade as the nation as a whole has tended to become more conservative. David Mills, the College Republicans President, noted that the association of the Republican Party with more traditional family values appeals to conservative young college students.

As the 1988 elections drew nearer, the College Republicans focused their efforts on that event, helping to acquaint the voters with their candidates and the views those candidates hold on the various issues. David Mills noted that "the greatest service that we can perform is to inform the public exactly where each candidate stands on every issue of importance."

College Democrats: Getting Involved with People

College Democrats were involved sewing the seeds for next year's elections. They worked hard to build their membership and to get the entire student body to know what the Democratic party was all about.

Their involvement beyond Campbell, Mary Jane Cobb, was the State College Federation President. The organization went to both the state convention and the platform convention. They also worked with Young Democrats, students in junior and senior high school.

Participation was the watchword for this year. President Kim Metts-Smith noted that one has "more success when more people get involved." College Democrats worked hard to see that more people got involved.

Campbell Photographers: Taking Great Pictures Is No Snap

Obtaining professional quality photographs for all Campbell University publications is the job assigned to the highly trained and dedicated men and women who comprise Service Enterprise's Photographer Corps. They are Campbell students who have volunteered for and completed training that is both intensive and extensive. School is their first priority and photography is their second and only other concern. It is demanding but they know that they have gained a skill that they will enjoy for the rest of their lives.

Rangers Stand Up to the Challenge

The Ranger Challenge provides tough mental and physical challenges and the opportunity for outstanding ROTC cadets to interact with others who are pursuing the same goals of excellence, discipline, and victory.

Twenty nine-man Ranger Challenge teams from 17 universities and colleges in North and South Carolina did battle in a head-to-head competition that consisted of a series of events that evaluated military proficiency, technical expertise, physical stamina, and most of all, team work. Beginning with a physical fitness test consisting of push-ups, sit-ups, and a two mile run, the teams then competed for top scores in hand grenade throwing, M-16 rifle marksmanship, construction of a one-rope bridge over a 40 foot water obstacle, scored orienteering, assembly of light infantry weapons, rounding out the day with a grueling 10k (6.2 mile) run in full combat equipment.

The Campbell University ROTC Ranger Challenge Team swept the competition, finishing first in the Carolinas. This earned these nine outstanding young men the distinction of representing the Carolinas in competition against the top ten teams on the East Coast.

Raiders: Dedicated to Achieving Excellence Through Hard Work

The Campbell Raiders is a detachment of highly dedicated ROTC cadets. These men and women volunteered to accept the challenge of becoming a Raider. After successfully completing a physical fitness test, they were awarded the distinctive black beret with crest. But that was merely the entrance exam. From then on they received extra training, both physical and military. It never got easier the Raiders just learned to enjoy the challenge.

Scott Higgenbotham, the Raider platoon leader, summed it up in one word: dedication. Scott noted that after the Raiders received training in such areas as rappelling, infantry tactics training and building of rope bridges, the Raiders got to teach those same skills to Junior ROTC cadets. He stated that it's a "special feeling of accomplishment to learn something and teach that to someone else."

Supporting A Proud Tradition

The Pershing Rifles is an honor society sponsored by the Department of Military Science. Named after the famous General John "Blackjack" Pershing, it is open to all students on campus. The Pershing Rifles perform as a rifle drill team both in competition and during public demonstrations. A nationwide organization, the Pershing Rifles fosters excellent relations between colleges. Members of the Pershing Rifles are given the opportunity to grow as leaders. They are taught discipline and skills necessary to organize and execute events with outstanding results. The Pershing Rifles is an organization with a proud heritage.

Campbell Company Cadets Take Charge and Move Out

The motto of the Campbell University Cadet Company is "Take Charge And Move Out!" and, as demonstrated by the cadets' outstanding performance and accomplishments, that is precisely what they do. The past year was a year of excellence for the Campbell Cadets. Seventy-five percent of the cadets were ranked in the upper 30 percent of Advance Camp '87. Twenty-six of the cadets, 84 percent, won individual awards. Included among these awards were three Company Leadership Award Winners. Many cadets won awards for demonstrated excellence in Land Navigation, Military Proficiency, and Physical Fitness. The Campbell Company is an integral part of the University and many cadets are extremely active in on-campus activities. There are cadets who are athletes, scholars, and leaders in Student Government. A well-rounded group of individuals, the cadets of Campbell Company are proud to represent Campbell University as the best ROTC unit in First Region.

Catholic Young Adults Help Themselves and Others

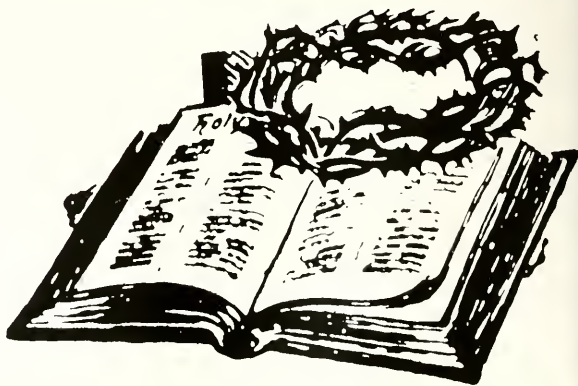

Catholic Young Adults offered some unique opportunities for Campbell Roman Catholics this year. One of the highlights of the year was the trip to Columbia, South Carolina to see Pope John Paul II and to hear his message. It was a stirring experience that none of the participants will ever forget.

Receiving the Papal message was just one activity that the group was involved in. CYA also participated in charitable works and social activities. The members found that CYA helped to round out their education.

Baptist Student Union Promotes Personal Growth

B SU is much more than just a collection of students united by a belief in Christ. They are also committed to spreading His word and living the kind of life He would have them lead.

BSU is composed of many diverse groups, offering activity and involvement in Christian ministry through song in Morningsky, through acting in the Drama Ministry and the Puppet Team, through the Prison Ministry, and through direct service to those in need through a number of different sub-organizations of BSU. In fact, almost every student at Campbell could find some activity in BSU that directly related to his or her field of study.

The purpose of the organization is to help students to integrate Christ into their lives, not just for their college years, but for the rest of their lives, and to help them help others to find that same peace for their lives. In this, the Baptist Student Union succeeded admirably.

Among one of the highest honors that may be bestowed upon a college student is selection for inclusion in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. Ambition = Success

Senior Class President is only one of the very many activities and responsibilities that keeps Billy Sewell on the move. What is the secret behind all of this energy? Ambition, motivation, and self-enthusiasm.

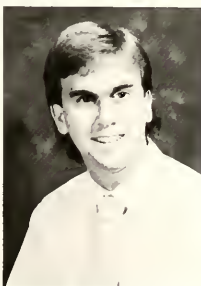

A business major from Jacksonville, NC, Billy is also President of the Adam Smith Free Enterprise Club, and a member of IOC and SGA. He serves on the Student Conduct Council and has been in Campbell's chapter of College Democrats for the past four years. He was also chosen as one of the Outstanding Young Men of America.

In his free time he enjoys hunting, water skiing, and just being outdoors. He grew up "raising cows and baling hay." Billy prides himself in being versatile. He says he's just as comfortable wearing a tux as he is driving a tractor.

"Good friends are important; they give support." That's one reason he chose to come to Campbell. He likes the personality that is present throughout campus.

After graduation, Billy plans to attend Law School at Campbell and also get his Master's in Business. He wants to set up a law practice or use his law background to become an entrepreneur. His main ambition, however, is simply to be a success in his own right.

Summer in a Palace

"The palace was completed in June of 1710. This is where Governor Tryon and his family resided for thirteen months..." states Angie Hewlett. Angie is a senior from New Bern who spends her summers in a palace vacation retreat, but as a summer job. Sounds nice enough for a summer job, but Angie remarks, "It is a demanding and enjoyable job." The story is all too familiar to Angie who recites it to tourists.

"Only our first four State Governors lived in Tryon Palace before the capital was moved to Raleigh in 1794," remarks Angie. The palace is a beautiful place and is North Carolina's oldest historical site, and deserves great respect. The palace mysteriously burnt down in 1798 leaving only the west-wing, which was the stables. It was not until the time between 1952-1959 that the palace was rebuilt.

Angie was a tour guide and craft caretaker. The job was a regular "nine to five" job. Although they run a tighter shift than most places, Angie said that ladies were not allowed to wear watches or any excessive jewelry. The whole purpose was to look as authentic as possible. As for the dress code, the palace supplied authentic 18th century looking gowns or servant costumes, depending on your job location.

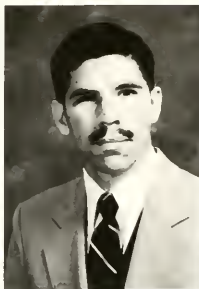

Angie readily remarks, "her most rewarding aspects were all the different types of people I met." The most challenging aspect was telling her story to the blind in such a manner that they could visualize the palace and its beauty."

Island Life

"Just sit right back and you'll hear a tale . . . here on Gilligan's Island." Well maybe a tale about Cyprus Island, which is home to Senior, Sam Kamar. Most everyone wonders how a person on an island somewhere in the Mediterranean Sea would hear about Campbell. Sam's grandmother student-taught at Campbell back in the 1960's.

Sam explains, "there is a big cultural difference mainly because Cyprus has had more years to develop. Just in 1974 the island was invaded by the Turks and there was a big transition period," explained Sam. During this time Sam attended school for one year at an American International School. After some changes in the homeland and a lot of developing,

Sam returned home in 1976 and continued his education.

On May 12, 1987, Sam visited England for five days. At this time, Sam played his first game of cricket. Sam said, "it was quite an experience in itself." Next stop was London and then home. On June 22, Sam hopped aboard a ferry and sailed off to the island of Crete. The means of communication was not a problem to Sam because he speaks Greek fluently. Sam said, "all you need is a sleeping bag and a place on deck." Upon returning, Sam worked a month at the American Embassy. Then at the first of August, Sam was shipped to a port in Israel, later to return to the States.

Take it one step at a time

"Sure I'm busy, but I'll help you," are the words you might hear from Senior, Lisa Mitchum. She admits she is a very busy education major yet she finds time to help no matter what the cause. Lisa is busy in such activities as Council for Education Club, Council for BSU, and organizing tutor sessions for second grade low achievers at the Buies Creek Elementary School. Lisa admits to being a people oriented person. "I enjoy people both young and old," stated Lisa. She also works with abused children and senior adults.

Over the last five summers Lisa has worked with girls grade four through twelve at Camp Mundo Vista. When Lisa first viewed a camp she had her doubts about getting around the rocks and stumps. After a lot of bruises, scrapes, and cuts Lisa was still giving it her all.

After graduation Lisa hopes to get a teaching job in Harnett or Wake County. Lisa says young children are so impressionable and need to know what love means. "They are very bright-eyed and willing to learn," said Lisa.

If anyone is wondering what inspires Lisa to try just a little harder, it is a combination of things. "Always knowing the Lord gave me the strength to fight and wonderful parents who encouraged me," said Lisa. Lisa said her parents really helped her as a child growing up, but now everything was between her and the Lord. Even when Lisa falls, the only thing hurt is her ego, she never loses touch with God or the faith that guides her. Lisa says, "Believe in yourself, and always look to the Lord for strength." God bless you, Lisa.

"Army Brat"

Junior, Monika Krause is not really an army brat, yet sometimes she makes you wonder! Monika is here in the States alone. Her parents reside in Germany, where her father is stationed. Monika comments she enjoys traveling and has visited fourteen countries and numerous cities. She is also a very outgoing person and admits "she loves military life!"

As many of you know, Monika is an exceptional basketball player. She said she first learned to play in the ninth grade while living in Germany. Monika enjoys playing and she is very dedicated to the sport.

While moving about the West, Monika got an opportunity to go inside East Germany where she saw the Berlin Wall. "It was covered with graffiti and guards were standing all around," exclaimed Monika. During her travels she has seen everything from the "Mona Lisa" in Paris, to Ann Frank's place in Amsterdam. Also she has been high aloft the Eiffel Tower.

All of Monika's stays were not pleasant but she made the best of all situations. She has visited Switzerland, Holland, Yugoslavia, Spain, and many other countries, but Monika finds herself partial to Germany. "I think it's the German chocolate," snickers Monika.

Monika plans to join the army in the nursing field, or marry someone in the army. She thinks it is a great opportunity to view the world and "experience European life!"

NFL Broadcast from the Creek?

"It's first and ten on the Steeler 26. The Rams have moved the ball 60 yards in just four plays. There's a time-out on the field with the score Pittsburgh 17 and the Rams 10." These are the very words that Junior Communications major David Adams hopes to be saying in a few years. Adams, from Washington, D.C., grew up as a sports enthusiast and has always wanted to be a sports announcer. "It really does not matter to me if I broadcast football, baseball, or women's gymnastics. I just want to get involved in the industry. I feel like I have what it takes to make it in the business. This may sound conceited but to get anywhere in this highly competitive field a person needs to have confidence in himself," said Adams. David has had an interest in sports for as long as he can remember. If he wasn't watching it, he was out in a neighbor's backyard involved in a pick-up game with the guys. "My favorite professional teams are the Steelers in the NFL, and the Lakers in the NBA. Collegiate athletics also interests me but my knowledge of it is not as specialized, basically because there are so many more teams." Adams lists his favorite college team as the UNC Tarheels. David said that Washington D.C. locals also consider themselves as part of ACC country. When asked who has inspired him in the sports broadcasting industry, he said that Bob Costas, Al Michaels, and yes, Howard Cosell, were his favorites. "Oh yeah, by the way, I hate the Washington Redskins. I am probably one of the few people from D.C. who eagerly watches every Redskin game — desperately hoping they will lose."

Guided by a Hand

"T^alented, dedicated to her music, willing to help a friend," these are just a few of the many great qualities of Junior Angela Daniels. Just like most everyone, Angela tried her hand at piano. She began taking lessons in the third grade and continued until the ninth. She was unable to read the music well, so she became frustrated, and quit, which is typical of most young performers. Angela modestly admits she wrote a song in the third grade called "Angela's Theme."

It was Angela's freshman year at Campbell before she became serious about her singing. She began to sing at local churches. Instead of using tapes, Angela wanted to offer herself. By this, Angela wrote her own lyrics, but found it hard to put it to music. It wasn't until the summer of 1986 when Angela wrote "Guided by the Hand," that she received the most praise and recognition. Then she performed at Christian Focus Week, BSU and informal settings with friends. She admits she enjoys singing to her friends, especially when they really need a shoulder to lean on. Angela has sung for Cystic Fibrosis on television.

Most recently, Angela has been in touch with an agent who advised her to cut a tape and send it to him. Angela has a "gift from God." She feels by singing she can send her message all over the world, to all walks of life. Angela said, "I write my music by just sitting back and watching others along with the inspiration of God."

Greatest Summer of my Life

Greg Daughtry spent this past summer traveling through thirty-one states, Europe, Great Britain and Northern Ireland while singing to the glory of God. He went with the Continental Singers, a Christian Contemporary Organization.

Greg, a communications major from Roanoke Rapids, NC, auditioned for the group last March. He sent in a demo tape and was chosen as one of thirty-eight members from over one hundred applicants.

The group met in Santa Barbara, California for a two week rehearsal and then they covered over 14,700 miles by bus during the two and a half month tour.

"The trip was very tiring," Greg said. During the tour, they gave eighty-four concerts: one every night and two on Sunday. They had two "free days" during the entire trip: one in London, England and the other in Panhandle, Texas.

The concerts were in churches (including an 11th century cathedral overseas), civic centers, and coliseums. The largest crowd they performed for was 3,700 people in Northern Ireland.

That was Greg's favorite place of all. "People really stick up for their religion and take a stand for Christ. They can be killed for their beliefs." Greg said he saw God work in situations where there seemed to be no way out.

"Helicopter" to Perfection

When the hardest days of winter hit, Dan Lai is looking for a ride to Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Vermont, or Boone. What do these four places have in common; you ask. Well, the answer is snow. Dan is Campbell's version of Phil Mahre. He is one of NASTAR's finest amateur snow skiers. He has amassed an impressive collection of medals in the eleven years he has been skiing. He has won eleven bronze, eight silver and two gold medals in his specialty area, Slalom. He has had great success at such fine courses as Camelback in New Freedom, Pennsylvania, Ski Round-Up in Liberty, Pennsylvania and Killington Ski Resort in Killington, Vermont. His best finishes (the two golds) were won at Holiday Valley in Olean, New York. Dan has defeated several ranked skiers but is not ranked himself. "I don't get a chance to compete enough to be qualified by NASTAR. (The national skiing association). My school work keeps me from participating in many events which I know I could do well. I have the dedication and ability to be ranked. I just don't have the time," said Lai, a Pre-Med major.

Lai said his favorite resort is Killington and his favorite course is called "Outer Limits" (It's the hardest course at Killington). "If I have to ski in North Carolina, I prefer Sugar Mountain in Boone. It's really the closest to the Creek and the slopes are very good considering the fact that you guys don't see as much snow as the Northeast." Dan's future goals include becoming a ski instructor. "Everyone is apprehensive about snow skiing until they try it, then they love it. I want to be the person who teaches them how to love it properly! My goal is for the whole world to be able to do a 'helicopter' successfully!" (A helicopter is a 360 degree mid-air turn.)

"A Woman Leading Men's Campus"

The R.D. of Kitchin Dorm is a sophomore with very high ambitions. Lillian King, a Government/Pre-Law major, wants to attend Campbell's Law School and then go to George Washington University Institute for Sino-Soviet studies in Washington, D.C. She wants to go into the Foreign Service working with the Soviet Union.

She was born in Mt. Olive, North Carolina and lived there until she was 4 or 5 years old. Her father worked for the Defense Department so she was raised all over the world. She says she has lived almost everywhere except South America.

Her high school years were spent at a boarding school in London. Her parents then lived in Saudi Arabia where they don't educate girls. During this time she traveled extensively.

Between high school and deciding to come to Campbell, she worked as a Public Relations Officer and a Financial Officer for a large corporation. She chose to come to school here because of family ties at Campbell and proximity of family in Mt. Olive. She also likes the small, slow paced atmosphere of Buies Creek.

In her spare time, Lillian likes to ride horses, fly (she's also a pilot), and see parts of the U.S. that she hasn't seen before. She also likes Amusement Parks. Last year she went to the State Fair and loved it.

Camel Spirit? You Bet!

Who is that enthusiastic guy who walks around impersonating a camel? Who goes undercover to help boost Campbell spirit? Could you ever guess that it's quiet, mild-mannered Brian Jenkins? Well, it is!

Brian Jenkins, a sophomore from Cerro Gordo, North Carolina, is the real identity behind his well-known alias, Gaylord. But why would a pre-pharmacy student (who is a tobacco farmer at home) want to masquerade in a hairy suit with a hump on the back?

When he was in high school, Brian and some of his friends came to a Campbell game. He remembers pointing at Gaylord and jokingly saying, "That's what I'm going to be one day." So last Spring when he saw posters up announcing tryouts for Gaylord, he jumped at the chance.

A week in August before school started, the cheerleaders went to camp at East Tennessee State University. Brian went into classes separate from the cheerleaders, for mascots only. He said that the best part of the whole week was "learning how to have fun."

While at camp, Brian (Gaylord) was chosen as one of the top twenty mascots. He also won the overall spirit stick, an extra superior ribbon, two superior ribbons, and received an excellent rating.

"Being Gaylord is the greatest," Brian said. "It has helped me more than anything at Campbell." He said the biggest benefit is meeting so many new people. He can just walk up to anyone and "talk" (although Gaylord can't speak) and never has to worry about being embarrassed.

Gaylord likes to play with kids and loves it when they ask for his autograph. The students also help him by playing and dancing with him.

Which Way Do I Go?

"Around the world in a day," well more like 36 days, and not around the world, but close enough. Freshman, Alicia Ruffolo from Florida has many tales about her trip to the other side. The other side being countries in which Alicia witnessed as a student ambassador. To be picked for such a journey after being recommended, Alicia went through many interviews. After which, Alicia was one of thirty-eight who took the trip.

Alicia remarked, "I always wanted to go cod-fishing," after her stay in Scotland which was the first stop. "The country seemed more conservative than the others we visited," said Alicia, "it showed more religious feelings."

"The highlight of the journey was the Soviet Union," said Alicia. She said it was like going back into time.

Alicia was most moved by their religious practices. She witnessed thousands of people worshipping in Leningrad.

As for Alicia, she decided she wanted to be a missionary. She believes the Lord has opened doors for her to become a foreign missionary. Alicia said, "I would like to go to Africa or Portugal, but I'll go wherever the Lord leads me." She also loves working with Spanish children. Alicia also said what hurt her the most was that some people had no conception what God is, and can be. Their worship services are not about God, but some of their dead leaders. "It hurts to see people so unaware of God," said Alicia. After graduation Alicia plans to go into the seminary. "It's all in the hands of the Lord," speaks Alicia faithfully.

Small Town Produces Big Voice

Denise Burch started singing at the age of five at the local Ms. Spivey's Corner Pageant. Denise is putting her home-town Faison, NC, on the map. Her voice has filled many churches and auditoriums alike. Denise said she won most awards on local and district levels, when she was younger. She also carried away many awards in 4-H talent shows and public speaking.

Denise enjoys singing to a variety of age groups. The most pleasurable times are when she has a lot of performances. Denise also admits she has never had any formal voice lessons.

In more recent years Denise won Ms. Hobbton in 1985 at her high school. She also performed at many pageants, weddings and specialty acts. Also, she sang for a Telethon on Channel 3.

All types of music appeal to Denise, yet she is more fond of country music. To her, the music has more meaning and is easy to understand. Denise appeared with a country band from Mt. Olive called the "Sunshine Band."

Denise never wrote any of her own songs but she hopes to one day. Her goal is to be a solo singer. Many teachers and friends have offered to sponsor Denise if she ever goes for the gold! Denise says, "I enjoy seeing the response from people when I sing, it makes me feel good!"

String Art

A hush falls over the crowd and they wait in expectation. Sweet notes fill the air as the bow slides across the strings, making the melody flow. A freshman business major from Garner, North Carolina, Stephanie Parker, has been playing the Viola since she was in sixth grade.

Seven years ago she started taking lessons in school. The Viola, she says, is much like the violin with just a few differences. The Viola is a little thicker and about three inches longer. Instead of the high strings the violin has, it has the lower strings which makes the two sounds very different.

Long hours of practice have paid off. In November of 1986, Stephanie was ranked fourth in North Carolina, including both the Eastern and Western sections of the state. For three years she was in Honors All State in the Eastern Section. She was also in the Regionals for four years.

Stephanie played with the Raleigh Youth Symphony for five years and in the Raleigh Civic Symphony for two seasons. They made many performances during that time.

For three years she went to music camp to improve her talent. While at Garner Senior High School, she played in the school's orchestra for all four years. On her own time she has taught lessons and plays the Viola at weddings.

Christian Legal Society

Christian Legal Society is an organization that supports the spiritual growth of law students as they prepare to enter a profession that will challenge them with many ethical and moral questions. The Society sponsors several programs throughout the year which provide for discussion and support of Christian ideals and thought.

Law Review

The Campbell Law Review is a scholarly legal publication produced by the highest ranking academic students in the law school. Those who rank from one to fifteen are automatically invited to the staff and they are joined by those ranking from sixteen to thirty who successfully compete in a writing competition. The Law Review is published twice a year and contains detailed analysis of legal issues in North Carolina and the nation.

Pharmacy Convocation

On September 10, 1987, the Pharmacy School held its second annual convocation ceremony. Speakers included Dr. Norman A. Wiggins (President of Campbell University), William Randall (President of North Carolina Board of Pharmacy) and the keynote speaker was Dr. Henri Manasse (Dean, College of Pharmacy, University of Illinois at Chicago). The event gave new pharmacy school students the opportunity for their first taste of the insightful views of those who have gone before them in their chosen field and became a success. The ceremony allowed the charter class and the School of Pharmacy to recommit themselves to one another in the hopes of making Campbell University a new landmark in the field of pharmaceutical science.

SAPhA

Student APhA is an organization which seeks to encourage future pharmacists to become well-informed on the subject of their role as a health professional. The organization encourages students to strive for improvement in themselves as well as striving for improvement in their chosen profession. Student APhA was organized in 1931 and is composed of 73 chapters located at colleges of pharmacy through the United States. The Campbell chapter boasts a membership of 112 under the direction of Thomas Wiser (Pharm. D) with assistance from Joe Moose and Michael Williams, chapter leaders. It is the members belief that through their activities, such as manning information booth at the Senior Olympics in Raleigh and Harnett County Community Pride, they aid others and retrospectively aid themselves in becoming effective pharmacy practitioners.

— Raymond Brown

Kappa Epsilon

Kappa Epsilon is a national fraternity for men and women pharmacy students. The purposes are to unite women students in pharmacy, to cooperate with the faculties of colleges where chapters are established, and to stimulate a desire for high scholarship. Kappa Epsilon fosters a professional consciousness and provides a bond of lasting loyalty, interest, and friendship. Through the year, Kappa Epsilon has been involved in many activities including professional service, and social projects. Some of the activities accomplished were assisting with the senior olympics, community pride, book-fair, Halloween carnival and cookout in Buies Creek, having speakers on "Drug Abuse" and being involved in socials like KE week to strengthen a bond of friendship between the members. The chapter was officially given a charter and initiated as Alpha Rho Chapter on August 22, 1987. The first pledge program which consisted of a pledge period, rush, and many projects was a strong one with twenty-one pledges becoming members. The chapter now consists of thirty-two active and dedicated members.

ACADEMICS

President Norman A. Wiggins addresses the 1987 graduating class.

FAR-SIGHTED GOAL-ORIENTED DETERMINED UPON SUCCESS!

These terms describe Dr. Norman Adrian Wiggins. His vision and administrative abilities have raised Campbell from obscurity into the competitive world of today's educational system. Since 1967 when he became our third president, the growth of the school has been phenomenal. Graduate studies were begun in 1977 with the Master's of Education degree. The Master of Business Administration degree was added in 1978 and the Master of Science in Government was established in 1982. The School of Law was established in 1976 and the Andy-Fetterman School of Business was begun in 1983. The School of Pharmacy and the School of Education were both established in 1985. Under Dr. Wiggins' enlightened leadership, Campbell met its goal of helping students develop an integrated Christian personality.

In defining exactly what a university president is, Dr. Wiggins has said, "The president here is a person who works with the individuals who want to accomplish something." In his ever-present employment of building Campbell's future, Dr. Wiggins is making a definite effort to help the students prepare themselves within their chosen fields of endeavor. Dr. Wiggins believes that the job of the university is to educate and train the leaders of the future. "We have a job of transmitting what we know to the next generation so that they can govern this country and man the professions and pulpits."

The many successes Campbell has had in the last twenty years has us riding on the crest of a wave. Who made the wave? Dr. Norman Adrian Wiggins!

Admissions

Mr. Herbert V. Kerner, Jr., Dean of Admissions/Financial Aid/Veterans' Affairs, shoulders a lot of responsibility. He, his associates and their staff are usually the field representatives that students and their families meet from Campbell University. As ambassadors of Campbell, they have an obligation to always be a positive reflection of the best that Campbell offers. His associates are: Rue Stewart, Director of Financial Aid, Jim Farthing, Director of Graduate Admissions, LeRoyce Bass, Director of Veterans' Affairs and Phil McAllister, Associate Director of Admissions. Together, they introduce Campbell to her future population.

Advancement

Mr. Frank Upchurch, Vice President for Advancement works very hard in the support of the University. However, he doesn't work alone. The Director of Alumni Activities, Mr. Hank Dunbar works diligently keeping track of alumni and seeding financial support from them for the University. Mrs. Cora Godwin, the Director of Public Information, disseminates all University news as well as edits the alumni publication, Prospect. Mr. Horace O. Barefoot is the Assistant Vice President for Advancement for Church Relations and Estate Planning. Business

Headed by Mr. Lonnie D. Small, Vice President for Business and Treasurer, the business offices handle the business aspects of the University. Mr. William Carson, Assistant Treasurer, works by Mr. Small's side, directing fiscal affairs. Dean Herbert Kearner, from the Admissions office adds input in relation to financial aid for the students. Mr. James Kinard, Director of the Physical Plant, Mr. Ken Barbour, Director of Food Services, Mr. Corbett Tart, Manager of the Laundry and Rev. Woodard Neil, Director of Bookstore Services, work together in serving the many facets of student needs on campus. Mr. Al Hardison, Assistant Controller, and Mr. Wendell Carr, work with Mr. Small's office in planning for the comfort of the students.

Student Life

Mr. Philip Melvin, Dean of Student Life, is a leader of a small, dedicated group of men and women "who do see 'student life' as their ministry and an opportunity to witness for Jesus." His associates are: Miss Kimela Blackburn, Director of Residence Life/Student Life, Miss Sharon Eldridge, Director of Student Activities, Rev. Grover Blackburn, Director of Religious Activities,

Mr. Robert King, Director of Guidance and Career Counseling/International Student Advisor, Mr. Herbert Ennis, Director of Security and Traffic, Mr. David Webb, Director of Health Services. Together they get involved in all aspects of student life to the benefit of the student community.

Faculty Member of the Year To Thine Own Self Be True

"BE YOURSELF! Be exactly who you are!" Mr. Bruce Harvey's warmth is evident in his honest and direct approach to life. Speaking enthusiastically of his work: geology, and his hobby: photography, he says, "Get excited about something you want to do in life and do it as hard as you can. It worked for me." Mr. Harvey was "speechless" earlier this year when he was "tapped" into ODK, a recognition that was very meaningful to him.

When asked why he feels he is popular with the students, he responded, "I treat them as people. It doesn't seem that long ago that I was a student. I am honest and fair with them. I state my expectations up front. I try to make learning a fun experience. I have an ear for their problems and encourage them to speak up. I try to be well prepared, to do the job. I give the kids one hundred ten percent every time we meet. I want to make them want to learn."

Student respect is the result of Mr. Harvey's dedication! He was elected SGA Faculty Member-of-the-Year for 1986-87. Sherri Phillips, SGA President, presented the award in CEP on March 10, 1987. "I was real tickled. I feel extremely honored that the kids picked me. The vote of the kids means more to me than anything!"

Staff Member of the Year Everlasting Joy

A brief visit with Coach Billy Lee reveals two things about Campbell's 1986-1987 Staff of the Year recipient. He has a positive outlook and he is a Christian.

Why did Coach Lee come to Campbell? "I wanted to live in a Christian environment and I felt it was time to have a new challenge. I wanted to coach Division One basketball."

"I like the people here at Campbell. The best way to describe Buies Creek is a garden-village spot with the hustle-bustle of a university. The caring of teachers, faculty, and administration and the quality of the students make "The Creek" a special place. I've enjoyed my two years here."

Referring to the SGA Staff of the Year Award, he said, "My family is real excited about my receiving this honor. Receiving recognition is always something you appreciate. You don't go out after it, but you're thankful for the blessings that come."

What advice would Coach Lee offer Campbell's students? "Don't let the Devil steal your Joy!"

Biology

If you can't use math it ain't science!" Biology has moved out of romantic times of descriptive Natural History into the more analytical disciplines like Ecology in which math skills are very important. Dr. Steve Everhart, Chairman of the Biology Department, is an enthusiastic professor whose energy infects his students with a desire to know more. A Bachelor of Science degree is offered and the major may be obtained either in a general, medical-technology, teacher certification or pre-professional curriculum. Classes including Basic Biology, that introduces biological chemistry, cell biology, energy relationships, reproduction and development, genetics and ecology, General Botany, that concentrates on flowering plants and biological economy, Vertebrate Natural History, that identifies, classifies and studies the life histories of the common vertebrate animals of North Carolina, and Microbiology and Immunology, that emphasizes the study of bacteria and the role of these organisms in ecology, health, and disease, aid the Biology Department in meeting the interest of almost everyone. The disciplines of Biological studies is a fascination peak into WHY? and WHAT and HOW COME?

Chemistry/Physics

Dr. James Jung, chairman of the Chemistry/Physics Department describes his associates as "close-knit, well-trained and dedicated faculty who off a sound program in a challenging course of study." The department offers a major in Chemistry, preparation for teacher's certification, a degree in Medical Technology, a Bachelor of Health and a Bachelor of Applied Science to Campbell students.

Chemistry is an integral part of many majors and an understanding of Chemistry will open the student to the world within our world. The department is also a service department for the Pharmacy School. This year has seen the department's largest enrollment in Organic Chemistry in the history of the University; an overwhelming number are in the pre-pharmacy program. From the General Chemistry class that introduces the student to fundamental principles and theories through Chemical Research the department is eagerly prepared to guide the student through the complexities of Chemistry and Physics. As Dr. Jung is fond of saying, "Chemicals should be handled with a degree of care directly proportional to one's ignorance of the chemical."

English

Dr. Scott Garrow, chairman of the English Department, works his associates to educate students in grammar, literature, and composition, opening new worlds to the students of the University. Preparing students for degrees in English, teacher certification and preparation for graduate studies are some of the departmental goals. Like the rest of the University faculty, the English Department shows a special warmth and concern for their students that makes Campbell a good place to be. The department produces

"flexible, problem-solving, articulate people" who are desired in Law Schools, science programs, and are well prepared for graduate school. A recent departmental goal is to strengthen the program for Education majors and those seeking teacher certification. The faculty see their department growing to meet the demand that society is expressing for "flexible, articulate people."

Fine Arts

The division of Fine Arts includes the disciplines of art, music, drama, and communications. Bachelor degrees are offered in Music Education, Church Music, Piano Pedagogy, Composition, Comprehensive Music, Theater, Religious Drama, Art, Communications, Broadcast Sales and Management, Journalism and Public Relations. Dr. Yoder and his associates creatively work with students discovering and refining talents that will improve our sometimes joyless world, much like a diamond is polished into a lasting beauty.

The four departments within the Fine Arts Division are: Art, Drama, Mass Communications, and Music. They contribute significantly to the cultural life of the University through concerts, art exhibits, recitals, musicals, and plays. Examples of recent events are The Crucible, the Harnett County Arts Council Contest, the Meredith Dance Theater, the WRAL British Brass Band, Joseph's Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat, and the Thai Art Exhibit.

Foreign Language

The Foreign Language Department, chaired by Dr. David Steegar, is a small but active department. Foreign Languages are a way to widen horizons and to learn more of difficult cultures. French, Spanish, Latin, and German are the languages offered. Bachelor of Art degrees are available in French and Spanish as well as teacher certification.

The professors, above and beyond the call of duty, are tireless in serving the campus. They have earned the love and respect of the campus community. It is the desire of the department to see the knowledge of foreign languages assume more importance in the business disciplines, for such an addition would enhance the career opportunities available to the student.

The Foreign Language Department holds a yearly competition day for high school juniors and seniors to encourage enrollment in their program. Plans for a video library are exciting to the faculty for the anticipated benefits. The newly formed Foreign Language Club, named in honor of Donald E. Phelps, is active and progressive in portraying the department's purposes and goals.

Geology

Although a Bachelor of Science degree in Geology is no longer offered at Campbell University, the Department is still around. Staffed by enthusiastic instructors, the courses are always a popular science elective. Physical Geology is the study of earth materials and landforms and the processes at work upon and within the earth. In the laboratory, emphasis is placed on the identification of the common minerals and basic rock types and the use of topographic maps. Historical Geology is more concerned with the changes in the earth's crust and the life that has existed upon that crust. The courses are designed to increase the student's appreciation of his home . . . earth.

Missing from the Campbell scene in the Fall 1987 semester was Mr. Bruce Harvey, who has left a vacant place in all of our hearts. But Dr. Bob Hope, Chairman of the Department, being a fine example to the students of dedication and professional behavior, is in his usual place.

Government/History

"Life doesn't come to us in multiple choice format." With these words Dr. James L. Abrahamson, Chairman of the Department, comments on the need for each of us to identify our problems and possible solutions. We must then choose the answer that is right for us. The Departmental goal is to help teach students "HOW TO LEARN." The world is changing "incredibly fast" and those who have no idea how to teach themselves will be out of date in a few years.

"Thinking is hard work." The student must "be trained to think" to be of value to employers. The best jobs will go to those who "know how to learn."

"Everything has a history. It is important to learn OUR history in order to get control of our lives and not be dominated."

The History/Government Department offers a Bachelor of Arts degree in History, a Bachelor of Arts degree in Government, a degree in Pre-Law concentrating in History of Government, a Bachelor of Science degree in Social Science, a Bachelor of Science degree in Human Services, and Teacher Certification in History and Social Science. Courses like Arms Control and Foreign Policy, which introduces the student to modern strategic concepts, theories, and doctrines of deterrence and defense, arms control, and international security problems, will challenge the student to stretch his horizons of awareness.

Health/Physical Education

"Students are our reason for existence. We are strongly committed to the professional principle of physical education and support of varsity, intramural and club sports. We encourage our students to evaluate realistically where they are and where they would like to be. Once our students have faced reality and evaluated their status, they must be actively involved in shaping their own goals. It is our responsibility to see that the goals are realistic so that together we may ensure success potential."

Dr. Harry Larche, Chairman of the Department, has words of wisdom he offers to students who are willing to hear. "You're only inferior when you think you are inferior. Light up your life by developing your intellectual approach to life."

The department offers a Bachelor degree in Physical Education with Teacher Certification for grades K-12. "Physical Education is an excellent arena for the development of all pedagogical objectives. Psychomotor development is naturally intrinsic to the field. By nurturing ego involvement and positive reinforcement, we can contribute to the development of effective skills and by treating the discipline as the academic area it is, we can encourage and direct critical, analytical and creative thinking."

Mathematics

"The purpose of the Mathematics/Computer Science Department is to create an appreciation and increased understanding of mathematics." With these words, Dr. Lamar Norwood, Chairman of the newly titled department ushers in a fresh regime for this difficult discipline. The degree offered in the department is the Bachelor of Science with a major in Mathematics. A Teaching Certification is also available. The faculty of the department proudly proclaim to all who will listen that a graduate with a mathematics degree is the highest paid of the professions listed in a recent survey.

"A light that is not burning capitulates to darkness," reveals Dr. Norwood's firm conviction that those who choose to keep their minds dark (in education terms) have given up on themselves and are resigned to ignorance.

The five professors of the department are dedicated to the 'lightening' of the world's mind to the brightness and excitement that the study of mathematics offers. Each has a strength they contribute to the department that would be missed if absent.

The department meets the needs of the University with a diversity of courses; from the Fundamentals of Math and Elementary Statistics to Differential Equations and Advanced Calculus. PASCAL and FORTRAN are also offered for those interested in the specific concepts of programming.

Religion/Philosophy

The Religion/Philosophy Department offers required courses in the basic curriculum designed to acquaint students with the Judeo-Christian and Western philosophies; offers advanced elective courses for those who desire to explore beyond an introductory level, specific subjects of personal interest; offers concentrations in Religion and Philosophy for students who have a more intense personal and academic interest in those areas of study; and offers a Bachelor of Arts degree with majors in Religion and Philosophy as pre-vocational preparation for students entering a religious or church related vocation. From the required course of Introduction to the Bible that emphasizes the birth and development of the Israelite nation to the more specific concentrated study of Paul, the department's course offerings focus toward a goal of education that has helped Campbell grow through the years.

School of Law

In August of 1976, a charter class of 96 students was admitted to the new Law School of Campbell University. The formation of a unique program, at a unique location and to educate a particular type of lawyer was the stated goal of the new school. With the purposely small school, the faculty are able to maintain a more personal relationship with the fledgling lawyers. Dean Patrick

Hetrick strives to prepare lawyers for any setting in which one could choose to practice. Campbell proposes to educate lawyers who will be prepared from the outset of their careers to serve their communities with legal skill and ethical and intellectual leadership, in the noblest tradition of the counselor.

The Lundy-Fetterman School of Business

In October, 1982, the establishment of the Lundy-Fetterman School of Business was announced. The School, named for the late Burrows T. and Mabel L. Lundy, generous benefactors to the University and strong supporters of free enterprise, and Lewis and Annabelle Fetterman, son-in-law and daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lundy, trains and prepares students to take a significant place of Business at Campbell University. The purpose of the chair was "to enlarge the political, social and free enterprises economic system of business and of the responsibility of business management to society." Dr. Eric A. Brodin, Ph.D in Political Science and International Relations, is currently serving as the Lundy Professor of the Philosophy of Business. In addition to his teaching duties, Professor Brodin advises the "Adam Smith Free Enterprise Club" and is a popular speaker and lecturer for civic organizations, churches, foundations and colleges in the United States, Europe, Asia, Latin America and Africa.

Business Administration and Economics

The Department of Business Administration and Economics prepares graduates for the business community, prepares them to be managers. "It doesn't lock you into anything — it's open — it introduces one to the business world and prepares one for anything the future might offer," is Ilene Mabry's description of the goals of the department.

A popular course with many majors is Money and Banking which studies the function and development of money, credit, and banking, with emphasis on the Federal Reserve System and its policies for maintaining economic stability. The course has been described as "a challenging course that stretches the student's awareness of current economic affairs." Degrees offered are the Bachelor of Arts and the Bachelor of Science in Business Administration and in Economics.

Computer Information Systems

Mr. David Cooke good-humoredly coaches his students through the intricacies of understanding and working with computers. But no one can ever claim he hasn't taught professional behavior also. His motto might as well be "Be a Professional" from the frequency of him saying it. Mr. Cooke and his associates work "to provide the CIS major with knowledge of and experience with the use, programming, and the integration of computers in the business environment." The major offered by the department, BBA, includes courses in accounting, business administration and economics. Pascal and Cobol are choices of programming available, as well as courses in CIS Management, Data Base Management, and System Analysis.

Financial Planning and Accounting

Two majors are available from the Financial Planning and Accounting Department: Trust Management and Accounting. A minor in Financial Planning is also available. Dr. Christian Zinkhan, Chairman of the Department, is a warm, friendly individual whose enjoyment of the discipline is readily evident. His "learning should be fun" conviction is discernible in his enthusiasm. He is excited about the unique opportunity Campbell University is able to offer graduates with a major in Trust Management or a minor in Financial Planning. The opportunity to sit for CFP exams is a recently awarded honor from the International Board of Standard and Practices for Certified Financial Planners, Inc.

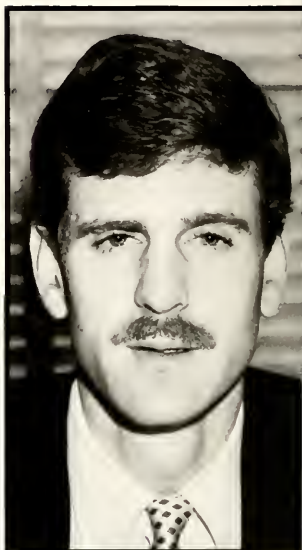

A second innovation for the Department is the internship program beginning in the Spring of 1988. The internship will offer "an opportunity for students to gain on-the-job experience related to their discipline" and they will be paid.

The purpose of the Trust Management Program is to educate and train intelligent, highly motivated people within the framework of a liberal arts curriculum and a Christian Environment. Over 75% of all trust graduates are currently employed by banking institutions. The remainder of C.U.'s trust graduates have gone to law school, or into investment, real estate or insurance.

The Accounting program prepares graduates for positions in public, management, and governmental accounting and internal auditing. Accountants face challenging opportunities at public accounting firms, non-profit organizations, manufacturers, retailers, financial institutions, and governmental agencies.

"Recognizing that the education of teachers is vital to the life of our society and the preservation of the values of Western Civilization, C.U. in late 1985, consolidated the related disciplines of education, psychology, sociology, military science, and home economics into a School of Education dedicated to intellectual development and professional preparation of young teachers." The School offers majors leading to the Bachelor of Science degree in the following areas: Pre-School and Early Childhood Education, Early Childhood and Intermediate Education, Middle Grades Education, Home Economics Education, General Home Economics; Clothing-Textile-Fashion Merchandising; Home Furnishings Merchandising; Food Service Management; Military Science; Psychology; and Social Work.

Home Economics

Mrs. King, one of three dedicated members of the Home Economic Department describes the objectives of the Department as "multifaceted, yet the primary goals are to reinforce the basic values of personal and family living so as to insure a higher quality of life within the family, at work, and in our society. In this technological age acquiring skills which prepare individuals for careers in food science, clothing and fashion merchandising, home furnishings and merchandising, and home economics education with emphasis on the needs of the developing child as well as the maturing youth, is a top priority. Preparation for enhancing interpersonal relationships for the job market in our increasingly competitive society is stressed. Through combining classroom instruction and personal contacts, we strive to demonstrate the academic, aesthetic, cultural, social, physical, economic and Christian truths of our heritage which contribute to a more fulfilled life."

Under the forceful leadership of Mrs. Lenore Tuck, the Department prepares students to obtain a Bachelor of Science in any of the disciplines listed above. All three instructors present their students with examples that are worthy of being emulated.

Appreciation of beauty is taught in this Department because as Mrs. Catherine King is fond of saying, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever (Keats)."

Military Science

The Campbell University ROTC Battalion, through its continued outstanding performance, has further established the University's reputation as an institution of excellence. The Battalion was cited as being in the top ten percent of the 113 schools that make up the First Region of U.S. Army Cadet Command. The Campbell Cadets won six out of seven institutional awards for outstanding cadet performance at Advanced Camp All American '87, an unprecedented achievement. The North Carolina Governor's Trophy will be presented again this year for outstanding cadet performance at Advanced Camp '87. Finally, the Campbell Battalion was recently selected out of the field of 113 schools as the winner of the Founders and Patriots of America Award. A tradition of excellence has been established and maintained by those individuals who make up the Campbell University ROTC Battalion. The professor of Military Science, LTC Kenneth W. Chelf, offers words of advice, not only to his cadets, but to the student body in general, "Remember, good luck comes to those who are prepared." He and his cadets have certainly shown the results of preparation and dedication to a goal.

Psychology/Social Work

Dr. Gary Taylor and his associates work hard to prepare the Departmental majors for the "real" world. In fields of helping, like social work and psychology, the professional must beware of making assumptions. "Always check your assumptions," warns Dr. Taylor. What seems reasonable and right may not be correct, and validation is essential. Another bit of wisdom from Dr. Taylor is "Never ignore the obvious."

Many times a professional may forget to check for more simple and treatable causes and attempt to treat a more complex emotional disorder.

Degrees offered by the Department are: Bachelor of Science in Psychology and Bachelor of Science in Social Work. Minors in each are also available.

Dr. John Mennear, Chairman of one of the two departments in Campbell's new Pharmacy School describes the Pharmaceutical Sciences Department's goals: "Without an understanding of and an appreciation for the principles of disease, pharmacetics, and drug action, a pharmacist can be little more than a merchant who fills prescriptions. Our departmental goal is to provide our students with the knowledge of basic pharmaceutical sciences that will enable them to serve their communities as fully functional, health care professionals." Dr. Mennear and his associates are enthusiastic and able professionals who share their education to the ideals of health care with their students and whose presence enriches Campbell University. The friendly welcome in this department begins with Mrs. MaDonna Dawood and is experienced with all of the faculty members.

Dr. Mennear, quoted from "Salutation to the Dawn" which was written in sanskrit some 4,500 years ago, "... Yesterday is only a dream and tomorrow is but a vision. Yet each today well lived makes every yesterday a dream of happiness and each tomorrow a vision of hope. Look well, therefore, to this one day, for it, alone, is life."

— Yvonne Murray

Pharmacy Practice

Dr. Thomas Wiser, Chairman of the Department of Pharmacy Practice, firmly feels that the goal of the department is "to do the right thing... for our students, patients, allied health professionals and all others that we serve." One of two new departments of the Pharmacy School, the department is located in the basement of Leslie H. Campbell Hall of Science. Specific goals of the department are: "to develop within our curriculum the 'state of the art' Pharmacy Practice knowledge, competencies, and skills; to serve the people of N.C. as a resource for drug information, drug education, drug research and a Center for appropriate knowledge and expertise to use medications and drug-related apparatus in the best possible manner including safety and efficacy; to develop a high level research program and knowledge base for the development of significant technical knowledge and skills to advance the profession of pharmacy and fund of medication knowledge; and to represent the Profession of Pharmacy and Campbell University with the highest degree of integrity and commitment to service, education, and research."

— Yvonne Murray

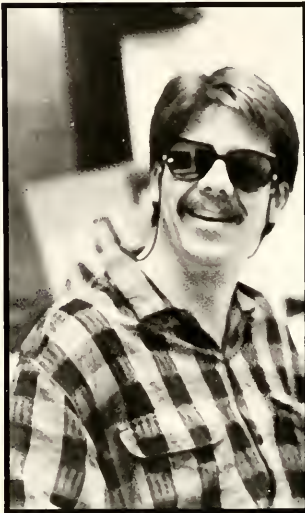

Dr. Thomas H. Wiser — Department Chairman

Dr. Daniel Teat, Dr. Constance McKenzie, Dr. Tom Wiser

Faculty "Shines" at C.U.

The warm caring atmosphere at Campbell University is directly attributable to the concern the faculty and staff feel for their students. Their concern is demonstrated by their willingness to listen to and advise students in both academic problems and the more personal areas of student concern.
